Mills Points Out Large Waste in State Finances

Pay-as-You-Go Policy Is Again the Battlecry of Republican Campaign—Great Extravagance in $100,000,000 Bond Issue.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP)—Pay-as-you-go in state finances, battlecry of the Republican campaign last fall, once more is in sharp collision with the borrowing policy of Governor Smith.

In his second address upstate, here last night, Ogden L. Mills, Republican candidate for governor, returned to the issue espoused last year, criticizing "Smith the borrower" and "Tammany financial methods."

"One of the real reasons why you cannot have economy and efficiency under Governor Smith," Mr. Mills declared, "is because he never has been and never will be able to resist the pressure of an organization to whom economy is a joke, and efficiency is of secondary importance compared with the ever present appetite for patronage."

Paying from Borrowed Money.

Citing the failure of New York and other states to reduce their debt on the crest of a wave of prosperity, Mr. Mills declared that rather "we have taken this occasion of all times to abandon the pay-as-you-go policy followed for 80 years, and to embark on a program of paying for recurrent capital expenditures from borrowed money."

He explained that the state must pay $4,000,000 interest every year on the $100,000,000 bond issue, approved last fall, and that $3,000,000 must be put aside yearly as a sinking fund to retire the bonds. At the end of the tenth year, he said, the cost will have mounted to $150,000,000 as compared with $100,000,000 which would have been spent under the pay-as-you-go plan.

Wasting Fifty Millions.

"On his hundred million dollar building program," Mr. Mills charged, "Governor Smith's neglect of the simplest form of financial principles will have resulted in wasting just fifty million dollars."

Mr. Mills will open the campaign in Columbia county tonight with an address at Hudson. Senator J. Griswold Webb of Dutchess county is also scheduled to speak. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Mills will be guests at a reception to be given by Republican women.

News of the Day In Wall Street

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—Revised estimates of the unfilled tonnage statement of the U. S. Steel Corporation to be made public at noon next Saturday, have altered the earlier forecast of a decrease, to an increase probably in the neighborhood of 100,000 tons resulting from large rail orders in the closing days of the month. As the rail orders are for 1927 delivery, however, and will not figure in the operations of the next few weeks, no substantial change in the corporation's activities is anticipated. Bookings on August 31 amounted to 3,432,000 tons.

The balance sheet of the Detroit Railway and Harbor Terminals Company for its first quarter of operation, shows a cash position of $650,175 fixed assets of $8,157,590 current assets of $894,853 and current liabilities of $325,574. This reflects an equity of $3,954,745 for the 19,539 shares of preferred stock and a surplus of $2,000,843 for the common. July, the last month of the first quarter showed an operating profit.

WHAT HAPPENED IN THE ROPED ARENA LAST NIGHT

By the Associated Press.

Toledo—Benny Gerhe, Cleveland, knocked out Kose Ortes, Milwaukee, 1 round. Ward Sparks, Detroit, beat Eddie Bowen, Cleveland, 8 rounds. Tommy O'Neil, Cleveland, knocked out Al Marchant, Detroit, two rounds. Battling Morgan, Toledo, defeated Joe Cutler, Detroit, six rounds.

Oakland, Cal.—John Lester Johnston, New York Negro heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over George Cook, of Australia, 7 rounds.

San Francisco—Benny Marks, Los Angeles flyweight, beat Bobby Burns, Manila, ten rounds.

Naval Recruits Will Go South.

A recruiting officer from the United States navy is now at the central post office ready to communicate with those desirous of joining the naval forces. The navy is seeking men to travel south with the fleet this winter and the men that join will probably visit Cuba, Virgin Islands, Panama and other lands in the southern waters.

Wales Dances the Charleston.

London, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Prince of Wales has mastered the Charleston. It is said that he can dance it with skill. At one of the most popular supper resorts the Prince danced the Charleston many times. Observers said it was a pleasure to watch him and his partner; that the dancing of other couples seemed clumsy in contrast.

The Hurley community was given a treat Tuesday evening in the form of a combination entertainment-educational affair when Dr. Frank W. Laidlaw of Middletown, district health officer, gave a motion picture and discussion regarding the eradication of diphtheria.

The Hurley people expressed their appreciation by turning out in goodly numbers and by showing great interest in the state-wide drive to completely eradicate diphtheria from the state of New York within the next five years. Dr. Van Norstrand, health officer of the town of Hurley, was present at the meeting and expressed himself as glad to help the people of Hurley and the Home Bureau in the campaign to eradicate diphtheria. It is hoped that all the children in the community will come to the clinic. A few children in the community have already taken the toxin anti-toxin treatment and are glad to tell their friends that "It doesn't hurt" and that they can say "No more diphtheria for us." Announcements will be made later regarding the clinic to be established in Hurley.

Team Captains For Church Rally

The annual rally of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church is now open. Plans have been made by the officials to raise a budget of $2,500, about half the running cost of the church. Considerable repair work is needed at the parsonage and there are other important obligations to be met in the parish. In the campaign the congregation seeks the co-operation of the general public in order to make the outcome a success.

The following team captains have been appointed:

Team No. 1, E. O. Clarke.
Team No. 2, Fred DeWitt.
Team No. 3, Theron Mowers.
Team No. 4, Dorris Dabney.
Team No. 5, James Ray.
Team No. 6, William Van Dyke.
Team No. 7, Ed. McKinnon.
Team No. 8, Sarah LaTour.
Team No. 9, Eula Hubbs.
Team No. 10, John Samson.
Team No. 11, May Standford.

Reports of the various captains will be made on Sunday, October 17. Prominent speakers will occupy the pulpit each Sunday during the campaign.

Sunday, October 10, will be Missionary Day and the Rev. Mrs. Edwards of Brooklyn will be the speaker. The women folks will have entire charge of the program that day.

The church is rapidly taking on new life and deserves the support of all. For eighty years the church has done untold good for the people it was erected to serve and the present needs of the congregation must be met if it is to continue this good work.

PLATTEKILL GRANGE FAIR PROVES SUCCESS

There was standing room only at the Plattekill Grange Hall on Thursday evening, September 30, when the Grange held its annual fair. The fruit exhibit was exceptionally fine and the judges found it very difficult to render decisions in some of the various kinds exhibited.

Nearly every kind of vegetable in season was presented. Dahlias, gladioli, asters and zinenias chiefly made up the exhibition of flowers, some beautiful specimens being shown. The flowers were donated to St. Luke's Hospital. Home made cakes, rolls, candy, cookies, etc., were exhibited and auctioned off to the highest bidders at good prices, proving that the ladies are equally as competent to produce prize articles in the kitchen as are the men in the orchards and gardens. The fruit was donated to the Salvation Army in Newburgh. Harold E. Tenney, of Little Britain, Ralph Harcourt of Modena and Walter Mills of Leptondale, acted as judges of the fruits and vegetables.

This year a new feature was added to the fair which has proven well worth while. The surrounding schools were requested to bring specimens of their school work and five schools responded. The exhibits were so fine that Gerow Wilkin, Mrs. J. E. Harris and Mrs. Leander Minard, who were judges of the school work, awarded the first prize of $5 in gold to the Forrest School and the second prize of $2.50 in gold to the Sylva School. Miss Lena Wood is teacher at the Forrest School and Miss Ethel Benedict of the Sylva School. They, as well as the pupils, were congratulated on their success.

An orchestra furnished music for the evening. Of clam chowder, rolls and coffee, there was aplenty. Great credit for the success of the fair is due to the home economic committee with Mrs. Gerow Schoonmaker as chairman, who took charge of the exhibits, also to the Graces, with their corps of helpers, for keeping the clam chowder flowing freely.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

At the Auditorium theatre all this week the production starring Mary Pickford, "Sparrows", will be shown.

Reade's Kingston theatre will offer a double feature program, consisting of the pictures "Volcano" and "Puppets".

The Orpheum theatre will present "Wild Horse Mesa" and "Private Affairs".

Attempt to Rob Telephone Booth

Three Men Made Unsuccessful Attempt to Rob Booth in Delicatessen Store of W. J. Wenzel of 384 Broadway on Wednesday Evening.

Early Wednesday evening three men entered the delicatessen store of W. J. Wenzel at No. 384 Broadway and while one of the men stopped at the cigar case to purchase cigars the other two, saying they wanted to use the telephone, walked into the telephone booth and closed the door behind them.

In the meantime the other man kept Mr. Wenzel in conversation as long as possible to give the other two men an opportunity to break into the cash box in the telephone booth.

Mr. Wenzel was somewhat suspicious, however, and remarked to another customer that the two men had been in the booth long enough to "have a Turkish bath" and it was shortly after that they left the booth and the three men left the store.

Investigation showed that the two men had lighted matches and had attempted to open the cash box but were unsuccessful. A few minutes after the men had left the store the telephone bell rang and the operator asked Mr. Wenzel if anyone there wanted New York. It is supposed that the two men to gain time had put in a fictitious call for New York.

Mr. Wenzel notified the New York Telephone Company of the affair.

Instructs Brides Not to Be Neat

Boston, Oct. 7 (AP)—Brides should be orderly but not neat—men dislike the "neat" woman. That was one of the first injunctions given students at the opening of Boston University's new course for prospective brides last night.

"Neatness has broken up many a home," Mrs. Elizabeth MacDonald, authority on home making, told her hearers. She advised girls to allow their husbands to enjoy their homes even to the extent of dropping ashes on the rugs.

Cross Continent In $8 Flivver

Edward Leverett, Jr., and Carl Messinger, Two Kingston Boys, Purchased Flivver for Small Sum And Are Now in California—To Return Later.

The latter part of August of this year, Edward Leverett, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leverett, of No. 400 Foxhall avenue, and Carl Messinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Messinger of No. 79 West O'Reilly street, purchased a flivver for $8 and after trying the car out decided to cross the continent to California, and left Kingston on September 1.

On the way across the continent they stopped at Colorado Springs where they were the guest of Chris Lang, a former Kingston boy who was with the Kingston Gas & Electric Company and is now with an electric company in Colorado Springs. They spent a week there.

Wednesday the Leveretts received a letter from their son stating the boys were now in Bakerfield, California, and enjoying a fine time. He wrote that they had traveled 3,500 miles in the Ford for which they had paid eight dollars and had met with no mishaps.

The boys expect to start back across the continent shortly.

Y. M. C. A. AUXILIARY INVITED TO NEWBURGH.

The Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. will meet at the Y on Friday at 2 o'clock. The Newburgh ladies have invited the ladies of Kingston Auxiliary to be their geusts at a luncheon and ride over Storm King Mountain on Tuesday, October 12. All members who wish to go are asked to report at the meeting.

The work of renovating the front rooms of the Y has been completed and will be open for inspection on Friday.

A report of the summer's work will be given.

Mrs. Jonas Stein will have devotions.

Miss Genevieve Mains has arranged a very interesting program for the afternoon.

Closed to Traffic.

Clinton avenue between Main and John streets is closed to traffic during the time the water board is laying new water mains in the street. The work has been completed south from Main street and traffic is again passing over that section of the street. The work on Washington avenue is also progressing.

Krause Paid $5 Fine.

Andrew Krause paid a fine of $5 when he was found guilty of public intoxication before Judge Jennings at Lake Katrine. Krause was arrested on Tuesday night by State Trooper Bentley when he was found lying on the Saugerties road after he had fallen from his wagon.

Train Service Stopped by Floods

Beardstown, Ill., Oct. 7 (AP).—Train passenger service into Beardstown, flooded by broken levees along the Illinois river, was stopped today as the river stage reached the highest point on record, 25 feet, 8 inches. One death from pneumonia, due to exposure, has been reported.

Cool weather added to the difficulties of water covered streets and unheated homes, the first floors of which in many instances are flooded knee deep. The only warmth available was that coming from electric heaters.

Plan Big Meeting At Lake Katrine

Through the Flatbush Farm Bureau committee, cooperating with the Lake Katrine Grange, arrangements have been made for a community social meeting to be held in the Grange Hall at Lake Katrine on Wednesday, October 13, at 8 o'clock. The program to be presented will be in charge of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce under the direction of Secretary L. S. Coe. Farm Bureau Chairman Fred Kukuk of Flatbush states that this is to be a wide open meeting with everyone invited and everyone welcome. A special invitation is extended all Kingstonians.

Miss Wilson at Governor Clinton

Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of former President Wilson, was a member of a touring party that lunched at the Governor Clinton today. Miss Sophie Loeb of New York, daughter of the banker, was, with Miss Wilson, the guest of Mrs. James E. Knott, wife of James E. Knott, of the Knott Hotels, New York. The party may stop at the Governor Clinton again on their return trip next week.

Saturday night the Hudson Valley Electric League will banquet in the new private dining room at the Governor Clinton.

Business dropped off somewhat with the beginning of October but Wednesday night every room was occupied. Net profits for September were over $7,000, bringing the total net profits for the period ending September 30 to more than $28,000.

Annual Meeting Of Herd Owners

The annual meeting of the Ulster County Accredited Herd Cooperative Association will be held at the Grange Hall in New Paltz Monday, October 11, at 1:30 p. m. The meeting will open with a business session, reports to be heard by Secretary-Treasurer C. C. Hardenbergh, President Millard Davis and County Veterinarian H. F. Fleming. Directors to succeed retiring Directors Millard Davis and Fred DuBois will be elected. All other matters relative to tuberculin testing work which members may want to bring up at this time will be discussed. Following the regular business session Dr. E. T. Faulder, of the Department of Farms and Markets, will speak. All members and others interested are urged to be in attendance.

Call Calendar of Court Cases

Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock Deputy County Clerk Walter Geroldsek will call the Supreme court calendar as required by rule 2 of the court. Cases on the October calendar numbering 381 will be marked at that time and all causes marked ready for trial by both parties will constitute the causes from which the day-calendar will be made up from day to day.

Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck will preside at the term which convenes at the court house Monday, October 11, at 2 o'clock with a trial and grand jury in attendance.

Byrd Plane Off on Tour.

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP).—The airplane in which Commander Richard E. Byrd flew to the North Pole left here today on a flight which will take it to all parts of the country on a tour in the interest of commercial aviation.

Rosary Society to Meet.

The Rosary Society of St. Mary's Church will meet at the undertaking rooms of James M. Murphy, 174 Broadway, this evening at 8:30 o'clock, to recite the rosary for the late Kathryn Henretty.

Gathering The Leaves.

Autumn is here which is manifested by the falling leaves that now cover the city streets. The board of public works has wagons and men employed to clear the streets of the leaves.

Chicken Pie Supper a Success.

The annual chicken pie supper given Wednesday night by the Winners Bible Class of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church was a success. Over 450 persons attended and enjoyed the good things served.

Train Hits Split Rail, Eleven Hurt

Victims Have Difficulty in Extricating Themselves From Overturned Coaches Which Land in Marshy Canal Bed.

Olean, N. Y. Oct. 7 (AP).—Eleven persons were injured two possibly seriously, when train No. 3333, northbound on the Rochester division of the Pennsylvania railroad, hit a split rail and derailed two coaches into water filled bed of the abandoned Genesse Valley Canal at Black Creek, about two miles north of Cuba, N. Y., this morning.

Those suspected of havng serious injuries are:

Jack Van Weigand, Olean, an exaviator.

Mrs. Anna Overlake, Newark, N. J.

Neither suffered broken bones but both may have internal injuries and are being held at the Cuba Hospital for further examination.

The following were taken to the hospital, suffering from minor cuts and bruises and were discharged after X-ray examinations proved that their injuries were not serious.

Henry Stern, Edward Farley, Willis Davis, Joe Roberti, Mr. and Mrs. William Russ, all of Newark, N. Y., Sam Tuso, Mount Morris, N. Y., Bettrus Asruin, Caneadea, N. Y., B. T. Brown, Erie.

The train left Olean for Rochester at 5:36 this morning and the accident took place at 6:20 a. m. The engine and baggage car stayed on the track but the two passenger coaches which comprised the rest of the train overturned and slid down an embankment into the marshy canal bed, which was partly waterfilled. Victim say they had difficulty in extricating themselves from the wreckage, as no axes were available. The train was in charge of Conductor William Andrews of Rochester.

C. of C. Program At Kerhonkson

Chamber of Commerce to Furnish Entertainment at Farm and Home Bureau Meeting Next Tuesday.

The next in the series of joint meetings of the Ulster County Farm and Home Bureau and Kingston Chamber of Commerce will be held on Tuesday evening, October 12, in the auditorium of the new Kerhonkson High School. All plans are well under way and if one is to judge by the town talk around Kerhonkson, a large crowd is coming out to enjoy the program and the refreshments served by the ladies of the Kerhonkson Home Bureau.

The Kerhonkson meeting is the second of these meetings held in the county. The program is furnished by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce and from what can be gathered regarding these programs planned for the people of Ulster county, the stars from Kingston will twinkle second to none.

The event will take place at the Kerhonkson Auditorium, evening performance only at 8. Box seats, orchestra, standing room all free. No reservations.

Free Diphtheria Clinic Friday

The third of the series of free diphtheria clinics being held at the city hall under the auspicies of the board of health will be held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Only those children who have received their first or second injection of toxin antitoxin will be admitted to the clinic Friday, as only one more clinic will be held this year.

ACTIVITIES AT WURTS ST. BAPTIST CHURCH.

At the close of the prayer meeting tonight there will be a meeting of the deacons and deaconesses.

Next Sunday will be Rally Day for the church and Bible school. An effort will be made to get all the elderly people and shut-ins of the church and congregation present for the morning service. The rally will continue through the evening services.

It is hoped that every member of the congregation and Bible school may be able to be present.

VINCENT VAN BRAMER WILL OPEN DANCING SCHOOL.

Vincent Van Bramer, well known local dancer, will open an up-to-date dancing school at Strand and Hasbrouck avenue, where lessons in the art of ballroom and solo dancing will be taught. The school will be opened on Monday, October 11.

During the season socials will be held for the pupils in order to better their dancing. Mr. Van Bramer is well known in this section, having performed on many stages in and around Kingston.

A Beauty Parlor.

Union Hose Company's Golden Anniversary

Event Celebrated With Banquet and Reception Wednesday at St. Mary's Hall—Five Charter Members Still Living—Brief History of the Fire Company—Open House Brings Celebration to Close.

With two of its five living charter members present, Union Hose Company, No. 4, appropriately celebrated its golden anniversary with a banquet and reception at St. Mary's Hall on Broadway Wednesday evening and will bring the celebration of the organization of the company fifty years ago to a close with "Open House" at the engine house at No. 218 East Union street this evening.

JOSEPH L. MURPHY.

St. Mary's Hall had been artistically decorated for the occasion with the national colors while on the stage were framed pictures of Michael J. Rafferty, a former fire chief, and of Joseph L. Murphy, the present fire chief of the Kingston fire department. Both men were for years active members of Union Hose. The banqueting tables were decorated with roses and greens and at each plate lay a handsome souvenir menu on which was printed a brief sketch of the organization, together with a photograph of Union Hose taken in 1890, and a photograph of Fire Chief Murphy.

While Smith's orchestra were playing the members of the company, their guests and friends took their seats at the table while the blessing was asked by the Rev. William H. Kennedy, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church. At the speakers' table were seated Joseph F. Sullivan, toastmaster of the evening, the Rev. W. H. Kennedy and the Rev. F. X. FitzPatrick of St. Mary's Church, Corporation Counsel James Jenkins, President Louis Kolts and Commissoners David Burgevin and J. Philip Beichert of the board of fire commissioners, Chris J. Burke and William Clark, charter members of Union Hose, Fire Chief Murphy and Deputy Fire Chief Fred Leverich, Secretary Lucullus Dunne of the local municipal civil service commisson, Fire Chief Fisher and Assistant Chief Freer of the Ellenville fire department, George D. Matthews, foreman of Union Hose, and their wives.

The Menu.

The following fine menu was efficiently served:

Fruit Salad
Essence of Chicken
Olives Celery Pickles
Ulster County Chicken
Mashed Potatoes
Cream Butter Beans
Fancy Ice Cream Assorted Cakes
Demi Tasse
Cigars Cigarettes

Sullivan Recalled Old Days.

Joseph F. Sullivan in his opening remarks as toastmaster said he had spent some time reading over the minutes of the meetings of the company as kept by the various secretaries since the company was first organized and he recalled a number of humorous incidents that had been noted in the minutes. One in particular that caused a hearty laugh was the incident of "Butch" Kilroy being fined twenty-five cents for forgetting to take his service trumpet with him to a fire.

Foreman Matthews Welcomed Guests.

Foreman George D. Matthews of Union Hose was the first speaker called on by Toastmaster Sullivan and spoke briefly, extending a cordial welcome to those present and inviting them to attend the "Open House" to be held the following evening at the engine house in Ponckhockie.

Clergy Extended Welcome.

The Rev. Joseph B. Scully of St. Mary's Church has expected to be present at the celebration but had been suddenly called to New York and the Rev. W. H. Kennedy and the Rev. F. X. FitzPatrick, assistant pastor of the church, extended the church's welcome and paid a high tribute to Union Hose and the part it had played in the community life of the city.

Judge Jenkins Speaks.

Mr. Sullivan said that Mayor Morris Block had expected to be present and had accepted the invitation extended but was unable to do so as he was under the doctor's care, and he was represented by Corporation Counsel James Jenkins, who spoke briefly and complimented the fire company on its record of the past fifty years.

Fire Chief Murphy Talked.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, who is a member of Union hose and who was also a guest of honor at the celebration, briefly outlined the progress that had been made in the facilities for fighting fire in Kingston since Union Hose first came into existence. Later in the evening he also sang a solo, "When You and I Were Young Maggie," and was forced to respond to an encore.

Cordts Hose Congratulates.

A letter of congratulation from Cordts Hose Company was read in which the other Ponckhockie fire company extended its best wishes to Union Hose.

"Always Active," Said Kolts.

President Louis Kolts of the board of fire commissioners said that Union Hose had always been active in local fire matters and had furnished some of the most efficient members of the paid fire department, as well as its present fire chief.

Ellenville Chief Speaks.

Fire Chief Fisher of Ellenville brought to Union Hose the congratulations of the Ellenville department and the hope that many of those present would be living at the time the company celebrated its one hundredth anniversary.

"Sing, Brethren Sing."

At each plate on the banqueting tables lay a song sheet headed "Sing, Brethren, Sing," and under the leadership of the orchestra the banqueters sang many of the popular songs of the day as well as some of the old time favorites.

Dancing Enjoyed.

At the close of the speaking program the tables were removed and dancing was enjoyed to the strains of Smith's orchestra.

The Charter Members.

Union Hose Company was organized on October 6, 1876, with the following members: Martin Ryan, Daniel Flaherty, Thomas Moran, John Hayden, Thomas Mason, Frank Redmond, Hubert Finley, Simon Cunningham, Daniel Sullivan, Chris J. Burke, Michael McGrath, Jr., James Manion, Martin McNulty, William Haggerty, John Cunningham, James McGee, William Clark, John McGrath and George Northrup.

Five Still Living.

Five of the charter members are still living. They are: Martin Ryan, Frank Redmond, Hubert Finley, Chris J. Burke and William Clark. Of the five, but two, Messrs Burke and Clark, were the only ones who were able to attend the reception, and they were given a royal welcome by the present members.

The Present Officers.

The present officers of Union Hose are: President, Chris A. Murray; foreman, George D. Matthews; first assistant foreman, Joseph Cwill; second assistant foreman, Jesse Sparling; secretary, Walter Henry; treasurer, Edward F. Moran; steward, William Keating; directors, Harry Krum, James Collins, Robert Matthews, Francis McGowan, and Joseph Bradley.

The Celebration Committee.

The committee in charge of the golden anniversary of the company were: George D. Matthews, Joseph L. Murphy, William J. Keating, J. H. Matthews, Jr., Edward F. Moran, Michael Leehive, and Joseph F. Sullivan.

Sketch of Company.

The following interesting sketch of Union Hose was printed on the souvenir menu:

Union Hose Company was organized on October 6, 1876. Its first foreman was Martin J. Ryan. It has been housed at the same location, 218 East Union street during the 50 years of its existence. In 1891 the old house was torn down and the present building erected. This company has won much favorable comment from the citizens for its excellent record as fire fighters. Three of its members have been promoted to chief engineers. Martin Ryan was for 10 years chief of the Norfolk, Va., fire department. Michael J. Rafferty was chief of the Kingston fire department for several years and Joseph L. Murphy, our present chief, is still a member of this company. The company now has a membership of 50 of whom 30 are active and 20 honorary or exempt members, those who have served five years or more in the company. Our president, Chris A. Murray, has [illegible] that office constantly since [illegible]. The company is now equipped with a combination hose and chemical auto pumper. In the fifty years of its existence many changes in fire fighting methods have been made but the company has constantly kept abreast of the times until today it [illegible] it has

Accounting for "Island"

"Island" is an Anglo-Saxon word of which the derivation is not clear. Probably it followed the custom observed in saying headland, neck of land, tongue of land, brow of a hill, mouth of a river, back or foot of a hill and arm of the sea. Its resemblance to an eye led it to be called an island. The "s" probably resulted from confusion with the French word isle.

DUCK FARMING ON EXTENSIVE SCALE

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Intensive duck farming on a large scale has been more successful than commercial chicken raising, but the demand for table ducks at good prices is mostly limited to the large cities of the East and Pacific coast. It is, therefore, important that duck farms be located within easy shipping distance of the markets in those sections. A good location for a duck farm is on a light, sandy soil, with a gentle slope leading to a stream or pond, making it possible to extend the duck pens int the water. Ducks can be raised at a profit on general farms, but under average farm conditions they do not pay as well as fowls. The Pekin duck is kept almost exclusively by commercial duck farmers in the United States who make a specialty of producing "green" ducks, that is ducklings grown rapidly and marketed when 8 to 12 weeks old and ranging in weight from 4½ to 6 pounds.

The Runner is the most popular breed for the production of market eggs, but the demand for ducks' eggs at attractive prices is very limited. About Easter time these eggs usually bring several cents more per dozen than hens' eggs, but during the remainder of the year the prices differ but slightly. The pure white eggs ordinarily command a premium. As egg producers, ducks are as a rule less profitable than hens.

Green ducks are marketed from April to November, the prices being highest early in the spring and decreasing as the season advances. On the New York market preference is given ducks weighing 5½ pounds. No ducklings should be held after the long wing feathers have reached their full length, as the ducks reach their best condition at that time.

In slaughtering for market the live birds are hung up by their feet in a row and a weighted hook is caught through the nostrils to facilitate bleeding. The ducks are stuck in the roof of the mouth or through the throat, cutting the artery with a knife having a narrow blade four inches long, and stunned by piercing the brain, turning the knife slightly. They may be either scalded or dry picked, scalding being the most common method and the one used exclusively for the New York market. If the birds are to be scalded, it is important that this be done as soon as they have finished bleeding, and that the water be just below boiling, as water too hot discolors the flesh. The long tail feathers are left on the ducks, the wings are picked to the first joint, and the neck half-way to the head. Long pinfeathers usually are removed with a dull knife, and the down sometimes rubbed off with the moistened hand, or it may be burned with alcohol or shaved with a very sharp knife.

After picking, the birds usually are washed and put into ice water for an an hour or two to cool and plump. Each layer of ducks is packed flat in ice, in barrels ordinarily with the keels or breasts down. A layer of crushed ice is put on the bottom of the barrel, and on this a layer of dressed ducks. Alternate layers of ducks and ice are added until the barrel is nearly full. The top of the barrel is filled with a layer or header of ice.

Early Hatched Chickens Often Crowded for Room

The early hatched chickens are getting crowded for room, mites and lice are multiplying; crows, chicken hawks and gray squirrels are searching for tender meat. Constant vigilance against natural enemies is the only way to harvest your chicken crop. There is never a season of let up for the grower of thrifty, quick-maturing chicks. One night of crowding will put them back a month; one house neglected will spread the lice and mites, but we get paid for our time when the cockerels go to market, and the pullets begin to lay.

That pullets can lay we know, whether they will lay enough eggs to pay for their keep depends on watching the details, and heading off trouble by care.

Improving the Flock

Many poultry keepers are successful in improving their flocks by paying careful attention to the type of birds that they use as breeders. If your own stock is not satisfactory it may be more economical to purchase new stock than to attempt to improve your own. However, be sure that the new stock is superior to yours and when once a satisfactory stock is obtained, do not destroy it by constantly bringing new blood. Keep them from vermin and diseases.

Practical Way to Feed

The practical way of feeding a flock is to keep the dry mash before them in hoppers at all times. Then feed the flock all the grain they will eat at night to send them to roost with full crops. Give about half the amount of the night ration in the morning to stimulate exercise in the straw litter. The reduced grain ration in the morning will increase the consumption of dry mash, which contains the materials most necessary for egg production.

THE UNDER-DOG

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

MY SYMPATHIES are always with
The ordinary sort of person,
My sympathies are all with Smith,
Not Algernon Fitzroy MacPherson.
The common road I like to jog
And help the rest, at least I try to,
And no one loves the underdog,
I know, the least bit more than I do.

In fact I frequently jump in
(That is, I often used to do it)
And help the underdog to win,
When he's in trouble, help him through it.
I used to—but I grieve to tell
Just how the matter often ended:
But I've been bitten much and well
By underdogs I have befriended.

I hope I won't appear unkind,
But I am getting rather wary;
And, when an underdog I find,
Instead of (as is customary)
Assuming he's the really straight,
The upperdog the evil-hearted,
I often now investigate
And find just how the trouble started.

In underdogs we all believe;
I hate to see convictions shaken;
And yet I was (although I grieve
To say it) now and then mistaken.
There were occasions all along,
When other dogs would bite and chew him,
The underdog was really wrong
And getting what was coming to him.

How It Started

PARCHMENT

WE ARE all familiar with parchment and its imitation parchment paper from their use in making lamp shades and for other decorative purposes. The original use of parchment, however, was strictly utilitarian, the genuine and original parchment being the skin of a sheep or goat which men in an early period of our history prepared for material to write on.

The invention of parchment is credited to Eumens II, king of Pergamum, in Asia Minor, in the Second century B. C., the circumstance being the prohibition by Ptolemy of Egypt of the exportation of papyrus, the contemporary writing material. In other words, the invention of parchment was the outcome of Egyptian conservation of home products!

The manufacture of parchment rose to great importance in Rome and its use spread all over Europe and continued until the invention of paper made from rags. It is from its birthplace, Pergamum, that the name "parchment" is derived, through the Latin "pergamina," and subsequently the French "parchment."

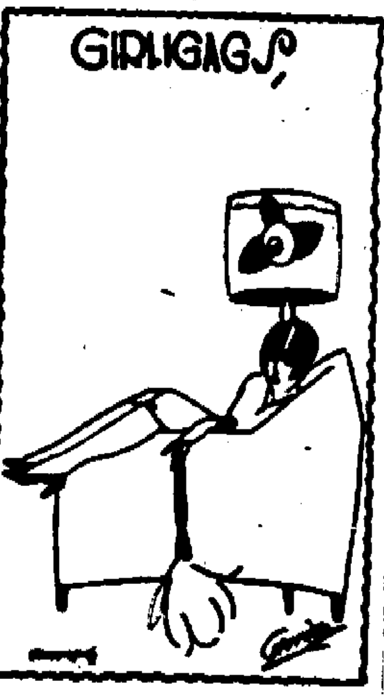
Drew Revolver Only With Deadly Purpose

The old-time cowboy seldom touched his weapon or its holster unless to draw and shoot, for witless fondling might invite a shot, and, unlike the bad man, he almost never carried more than a single gun. Not only was a second gun cumbrous, but it denoted a state of war or of armed neutrality. Getting the drop and then not firing was what the Texan and the westerner, unlike the synthetic puncher, rarely bothered to attempt. Usually the Texan or the westerner, when he seriously drew a weapon, did so with the purpose of giving "a lead ticket to Gehenna Junction." Employment of the pistol as a means of admonishing strangers' feet and inviting them to dance, or as an instrument for either lancing hats or snuffing barroom lamps occurred so seldom as to have amounted to little more than the foundation of amusing legend, but it has become, upon both the motion-picture screen and the printed page, one of the cowboy's diurnal functions.—Saturday Evening Post.



"The fact that there are two sides to every question isn't anything to brag about," says cynical Sally. "That's just what causes all the trouble."

THE CHARM OF FRANCE

Asking why American tourists so largely make England a mere way station and then pass on to spend their money in France, the London Times proceeds to explain that Americans go to France because they can get so many francs for their dollars, and, with their dry homeland far behind them, are sure of cheap as well as abundant wine. This explanation obviously overlooked the fact that Paris has always attracted travellers from the United States and that tourists from wet South America still flock there as to a place of inexhaustible charm Calling the attention of the London Times to this oversight, the Paris Temps undertakes to reveal "the secret of an attachment" by suggesting that what attracts and has always attracted foreigners to France is "the pleasure of touching the joy of living nowhere else developed so highly as with us, and which, far from being the privilege of a single class, the rich, is spread from top to bottom of the social ladder throughout the entire nation."

Agreeing that France has surpassed the world in "the science of society," the New York Times goes on to say: "Add to all this social charm the fact that France is extraordinary in leaving the individual free to go his own way, without having to stop to consider the prejudices and social bans which overflow the Anglo-Saxons, and one comes somewhere near defining the great human appeal which France has for many years made to foreigners." The Times sees proof of its view in the fact that footloose foreigners, including Americans, go to France "again and again" to stay as long as may be.

Secretary Jardine says that the farmers want some tariff changes; tax reduction, especially local taxes; better credit facilities. Congress would gladly give any or all of these, if it knew exactly what the farmer wants and needs. Although the agricultural tariff was built for the farmer, it could be changed if farmers were able to agree wherein it is either too high or too low. National tax reduction is already an established fact; local taxes are entirely in the hands of local voters. Farm credits are little understood by either Congress or by farmer organizations; it would be a foolish Congress that would pass any sort of credits bill when the farmer does not even know exactly what he wants. That is about the present political situation in regard to farm legislation.

Miss Carolyn Hennessy of New York applied to change her surname on the ground that it had held her "up to ridicule and contemptuous mirth" among her school and college associates, but City Court Justice Ryan, also Irish and proud of it, instead of discussing the law in this case, indignantly instructed the petitioner in the glories of her Hennessy ancestors. Miss Hennessy's obvious difficulty is that she is associated, not with her glorious ancestors, but with unappreciative and discourteous young Americans.

Sir Harry Fielding Dickens (son of the famed novelist) and Lady Dickens recently celebrated their golden wedding surrounded by their six children and sixteen grandchildren. Blooming Lady Dickens confided to an inquirer that "the secret of youth is to have half a dozen children and sixteen grandchildren." It is to be feared that the majority now chiefly depending on beauty shops and "face lifting" will regard the view of Lady Dickens as hopelessly Victorian.

An ouster suit is to be brought against the mayor of Kansas City, Kans., charging him with protecting the illegal liquor traffic. Numerous other reports from Kansas in recent times have indicated that as one of the early prohibition states it has on the whole disappointed expectations.

It seems that the beautiful cloak model is no more and that the plainest girls are now chosen to display the new gowns. One reason given for the change is that women are less likely to be disappointed in dresses that look better on the purchasers than on the model.

The United States is truly a land of accidents. We read that no less than twenty-three occur every minute and that a tenth of all the deaths is due to them. In two years motorcars alone kill about as many as this country lost in the World War.

CHEAP FOOD OR MEDICINE.

One of our medical professors has been trying out the value of ordinary glucose on his undernourished patients.

For some years glucose has been used by injection into the veins, where the case was real urgent. The use of this form of sugar by the mouth is of more recent origin, as it was felt that it would be hard on the kidneys if given in large doses.

However this physician has been giving as much as a pound a day of the ordinary glucose sold at any grocers.

He suggests the following simple and palatable method of preparing the glucose.

The pound of glucose is stirred into a quart of boiling water, the juice of two lemons added; the lemons are then chopped up and thrown into the mixture, which is boiled for five minutes and then strained. The result is a pleasant lemonade

The body begins absorbing the glucose almost immediately, some of it supplying energy, and the rest being stored up as glucogen in the liver, to be used when the food intake of sugar or starch is insufficient for the body needs.

He points out further that contrary to general belief, practically all this glucose is used up by the body, and there is no waste or residue to clog up the kidneys

Some tissues will store up any excess as fat.

You can see then that a simple, easily digested food such as this, would be of great value in various ailments. So many patients with kidney trouble are insufficiently nourished, because the different foods, particularly eggs and meats, leave too much waste matter for the kidneys to remove. Too many ashes or cinders, as some one has put it.

When the patient has no appetite, and is steadily losing weight, a pound of glucose daily will give energy, build tissue, put something away for the future, and yet it is so easily taken and digested. This may mean all the difference between life and death in severe cases of pneumonia, bronchitis, or influenza.

In fact in any run down condition, the addition of this glucose to the dietary may be found extremely useful.

And it is the cheapest food or medicine known.

LUTHERANS PROPOSE NEW CHURCH PAPERS

Richmond, Va.—At a time when most of the Protestant churches in America are curtailing their periodical publications, the United Lutheran Church in America astonishes its sister denominations by seriously proposing the issuance of two new publications, in addition to The Lutheran, its official weekly paper.

In its report to the coming National Convention, meeting here from October 19 to 26, the Committee on Church Papers will recommend the publication of a "serious, thoughtful, and suggestive monthly magazine for pastors and laymen interested in the work of the church in its broader aspects."

The same report will urge, as well, the issuance of a "theological quarterly for the cultivation and development of Christian thought". This means a definite publication of an official nature for the scholarly group of pastors and laymen throughout the whole country.

It is likely that these plans will be approved by the convention, and that the new publications will make their debut in the journalistic world within the next two years. The committee makes no nominations for the editorship of these two proposed journals, but the convention itself may exercise its privilege and elect editors upon the floor.

The committee on church papers proposing the establishment of this new publication, consists of the Rev. Dr. J. A. Morehead, of New York, chairman; the Rev. Dr. H. Offerman, Philadelphia, secretary; the Rev. Dr. Henry Anstadt, Chambersburg, Pa.; I. Searles Runyon, New York; L. Russell Alden, Washington, D. C.; the Rev. Dr. J. A. Leas, Chicago; the Rev. Dr. C. E. Gardner, St. Louis; the Rev. Dr. John Aberly, Maywood, Ill.; and Dr. William J. Showalter, Washington, D. C.

British Troops on Marauding Expedition Burn Kingston, the State Capital, October 7, 1777.

Kingston, county-seat of Ulster County, is an important city on the Hudson River, one hundred miles north of New York City, and was the scene of many events in the early history of the state

The Dutch established a trading post upon the present site of Rondout, in 1614, which is now a part of the City of Kingston This post was broken up by the Indians, and a new one was commenced between 1630 and 1640.

The first permanent settlement was made here in 1652, when the Dutch inhabitants called the place Esopus. It was attacked by the Indians, and in 1655 was abandoned. In 1661 the settlers were granted a charter, but as a dependency of Fort Orange (now Albany), and the place was called Wiltwyck

On June 7, 1663, the Indians attacked the settlement and massacred many of the people until the whites, recovering from their panic, under the leadership of Thomas Chambers, finally drove the marauders from the fort. Eighteen settlers were killed and forty-two were carried away prisoners. The English obtained possession in 1664, and five years later changed the name to Kingston.

On February 19, 1777, the first State Convention of the State of New York adjourned from Fishkill to Kingston, and the first State Constitution was proclaimed in front of the court house on April 22, 1777.

On September 9 following, Chief Justice John Jay opened in Kingston the first state court, and in the same month the State Legislature convened here, but was dispersed by the approach of the British.

On the day following the battles on the Hudson when Sir Henry Clinton and his formidable army captured Fort Clinton, Fort Montgomery and Fort Constitution, broke the boom and chain across the river, a flying squadron of light vessels, commanded by Sir James Wallace, went up the river to devastate its shores and keep the patriot militia from joining Gates.

These vessels bore the whole land force of Sir Henry Clinton, consisting of 3,600 troops, and that officer felt so secure in his victory that he dispatched a messenger to General Burgoyne, which apprised him of Clinton's victories and assured him of reinforcements. But this message never reached Burgoyne, nor did Clinton's army.

This British marauding expedition of Tories under General Tyron and regulars under General Vaughan, burned every vessel found on the river, houses of well known Whigs were fired upon, and small parties landing from their vessels desolated the neighborhoods with fire and sword. They penetrated as far as Kingston, which was then the political capital of the state, applied the torch and laid almost every house in the village in ashes. The Legislature fled to Dutchess County, and soon afterward resumed their sittings in Poughkeepsie.

Leaving Kingston the marauders went up the river as far as Livingston's Manor, destroying much property at Rhinebeck on the way. They had begun to desolate Livingston's estate when they were halted by the alarming intelligence of Burgoyne's defeat. Then they made a hasty retreat to New York. On their return trip they thoroughly ruined Forts Clinton and Montgomery.

General Putnam, reinforced by militia, soon re-occupied Peekskill. Kingston was rebuilt, and incorporated as a village in 1805, and chartered as a city in 1872. The city now comprises the former villages of Kingston, Rondout and Wilbur.

Kindly old lady: "You say you've been on the force eight years? Why haven't you some service stripes on your sleeves?"

Cop: "I don't wear them. They chafe my nose."

In Arcady, birds sweetly sing:
(I wonder who'll accept this thing?)
The music of their blithesome song—
(Good Lord, my hair is getting long!)
Enraptures one. Love ne'er grows old
(Brhh! Say this room is cold!)
In Arcady. There magic fills
(I've simply got to pay these bills)
The nights; each liquid hour
(I'll bet that bowl of milk is sour!")
Drips redolence. Soft zephyrs tell
(I wish those kids were—here them yell!)
Of sylvan glades and meadows where
(That noise would make Saint Peter swear!)
Moon maidens dance with twinkling feet
(Oh, for a good square meal to eat!)
In Arcady, the saffron dawn
(I haven't got a thing to pawn)
Steals from the east, the west to rob—
(Oh, darn it, I guess I'll hunt a job!)

"A little paint will brighten up any joint," said the flapper, as she applied the rouge puff to her dimpled knee.

Employer "What makes you so sleepy in the office?"

Clerk: "It's my sense of duty, sir."

"What?"

"I lie awake so much at night thinking about my work."

Josiah (just returned from the city)—Yes, sir, they certainly treated me fine They must have thought I was the president or somebody, they gave me a room that had a door opening into the bathroom.

"I suppose you sell the ounce of prevention as well as the pound of cure?"

"Also the pink of condition," said the druggist as he wrapped a box of rouge."

The higher the tip the waiter gets
The lower the bow that blesses;
The higher the fashion milady sets,
The shorter she wears her dresses.

"She thinks no man good enough for her; she may be right."

"And she may be left."

A young husband was asked if his wife was a good cook.

Bravely and loyally he replied: "I'll say she is! Why, she can make ice cream that fairly melts in your mouth."

Your Home Should Come First

Regardless of how many demands there are on the family purse or how strongly the fads of the moment or the trend of the times may tempt one to spend foolishly, the wise man and woman never sacrifice comfort or attractiveness at home. They know that the joy which comes from having a pleasantly furnished home to live in is sweeter and more enduring than almost anything else in which they might invest. They know the true worth of good furniture and the satisfaction of owning it.

Motorman 349 Regains Health

Well-known Citizen, Threatened With Permanent Ill-health Brought on by Heartburn, Nervousness and Indigestion. Case Seemed Hopeless.

Everyone who is ailing can benefit by the trying experience of Herbert Kelsey, 114 Seneca Street, Utica, N.Y., a motorman on the James Street Line, father of 5 children. He says: "Indigestion caused such great pain that I almost gave up the thought of ever feeling well. For days at a time I would have to remain away from work.

"Gas bloated my stomach, pressing against my lungs and causing heartburn. I was so nervous, I never had a good night's sleep.

"Nothing seemed to do me any good. After reading about Tanlac I decided to try it. Immediately I began to feel stronger. My appetite returned and I gained weight. Tanlac built up my strength and health."

This amazing tonic, nature's own remedy made from roots, barks and herbs, helps build up weak bodies, drive out causes of pain. Take wonderful Tanlac. Ask your druggist for a bottle—today! Over 40 million bottles sold.

Vapors stop Colds

VAPORS reach a cold directly because they are breathed right into the air passages and lungs. It is for this reason that Vicks VapoRub brings such quick relief. When rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime:—

It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled, while you sleep, right to the affected parts, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

At the same time it acts through the skin (like a poultice or plaster) "drawing out" the pain and soreness

Most colds yield by morning to this double action of Vicks.

VICKS VAPORUB

OVER 21 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

Is "Yellow Mask" Your Teeth's Foe?

Do your teeth have a dingy, yellowish tinge? They should be a pearly white—because that is enamel's natural color.

Then why, you ask, do mine have that yellowish cast despite daily brushing? Because of a "liquid cement" in your saliva. This is called Calculus. It glues to your teeth—then hardens into a glassy mask. It completely veils the lustrous enamel. And worse it is absorbent . . . drinks in coffee, food and tobacco stains like a blotter absorbs ink. These discolor it—give it that yellowish tinge.

Ordinary dentifrices cannot dislodge it. Only one thing can—a peculiar substance known as "Tri-Calcium Phosphate". Your dentist uses it to clean teeth. It makes a tooth fairly dazzle.

Now, for the first time, dental science gives you this wonderful "Tri-Calcium Phosphate" in a tasty, pleasant tooth paste. That means a sure and positive way to remove that yellow mask and gain glorious pearly teeth. Often this magic dentifrice does this in one application!

The name of this marvelous tooth paste is ORPHOS. Dentists everywhere endorse it—especially for teeth difficult to whiten. Convince yourself of its wonderful powers to beautify. Get a tube now from your druggist—or mail coupon below for generous FREE tube.

The Hotel Stenographer

Alpe Fulkerson

"POOR EMILY," sighed the Hotel Stenographer, looking after a girl who had just left her desk.

"What's her trouble?" asked the House Detective.

"Second-handedness," answered the girl. "She was born that way. Like being born a Chinaman, it's something you never get over.

"She was born a year after her brother Shamus and when she came into the world her people were kind of poor. She never had anything but second-hand clothes, second-hand toys, and a second-hand baby buggy.

"By the time she was old enough to go to school her big sister had finished a couple of grades ahead of her. She always wore her big sister's old clothes made over, used her big sister's school books and even her dolls were the ones her big sister had dragged around for a couple of years.

"When she was sixteen her sister turned into a beauty and left a trail of discarded lovers behind her. Emily fell heir to most of them. I always hoped she would marry before her sister, but it seemed they didn't do nothing when they were with Emily but tell how much she looked like her sister when she wore said sister's old clothes.

"About six months ago sister got married, leaving Emily all by herself. I had given up hopes of her marrying because she hadn't caught any of her sister's sweeties on the first bounce after she bounced 'em.

"She was here to tell me she is going to be married. She was entirely consistent, too; she's getting a second-hand husband and sister is going to give her her wedding dress to be married in. Properly to finish up the picture her second-hand husband should buy her a used car and she will be happy, I suppose."

FOR THE GOOSE—

A WOMAN that's in the mood for feelin' sorry for herself don't even think the sun shines as strong on her wash as in the yard next door.

A jury might not believe what your mother says about you, but they'll listen to the people downstairs.

Wild-Life Sanctuary

The Great Dismal swamp, lying on the borderline of Virginia and North Carolina, is considered one of the finest wild-life sanctuaries on the North American continent. It comprises nearly one thousand square acres and most of the territory is inaccessible. Many weird tales are associated with this swamp area generally woven around lost hunters.

EVERY-DAY GOOD THINGS

APPLES are so wholesome, so well-liked and usually so plentiful that they should be eaten every day when possible to obtain them. An apple eaten at night, when it agrees with one, is a fine remedy for constipation. "An apple a day keeps the doctor away" is a good and true saying.

Apple Sauce Frappe.

Make a sweet apple sauce, flavoring with red cinnamon candies. Press through a colander, add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and freeze to a thick mush. Serve in apple cups, garnished with bright jelly.

Apple Delmonico.

Butter a baking dish and lay in a layer of tart apples cored and cut into rings. Sprinkle with ground almonds and sugar, cover with crushed macaroons and pour over one cupful of any canned fruit juice or a cupful of sirup made of sugar and water. Cover and bake forty-five minutes in a quick oven. Serve garnished with whipped cream.

A new way to serve sweet potatoes is to boil them cut into rounds and fry in butter. Serve with a ring of fried apple on each slice of potato.

Apple Salad.

Quarter three bright-skinned apples without removing the peeling. Cut into thin slices. Cut one bunch of celery into small pieces and place in cold water with a little lemon juice. Prepare French dressing, chill all the ingredients, adding enough paprika to the dressing to give color. Mix one cupful of blanched pistachio nuts with the other ingredients and serve on lettuce. The combination of white of the celery, red of the apple and green of the nuts makes a most attractive salad.

Waldorf Salad.

This is such a common but such a good salad that it should not be slighted. To one cupful of celery use two cupfuls of apple and one-half cupful of any finely broken nut meats.

Ocean's Saltiness Varies

The salinity of the Atlantic ocean varies. There are two sections of greatest salinity, one in the north Atlantic and one in the south Atlantic, where it amounts to from 3.70 to 3.77 per cent. From these two areas the salinity decreases to about 3.40 per cent toward the equator and the poles.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Bonner

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

THE FALLOW DEER

"In the winter I changed my costume," said the Fallow Deer, "and that was quite a little while ago.

"I looked all dressed up for the winter.

"There are some creatures," the Fallow Deer continued, "who wear the same thing summer and winter. Then, of course, there are others who are changing all the time, or at least very, very often.

"But the ones who wear the same costume winter and summer don't seem to care about a change of color at all. Now, I do.

"That is what I particularly care about and why I change my costume in the winter.

"I do enjoy a change of color.

"I am enough of a slave to fashion to change my costume.

"Yes, I am really a slave to Fallow Deer fashion.

"In the summer, as you see me now, I am of a reddish-tan shade, almost a light-red color with beautiful white spots.

"Then, when winter comes along I change from such a gay and summery costume to a more wintry and quiet one.

"In the winter I wear dark, dark brown, although my leggins are lighter brown in shade.

"My home, my old, old family home, is in Africa, but many of us have lived in England and in other parts of Europe.

"In fact, many of my relations live in the woods and parks of Europe and a great many of them especially care for England.

"So we haven't just one old family home, but many.

"Yes, we are lucky in that way, and we are lucky, too, in the way we can have different costumes for summer and winter.

"Then, too, we are lucky because we have such long antlers and yet are dainty and small ourselves.

"In fact, we could be called the lucky Fallow Deer family as well as the fashionable and suitably dressed Fallow Deer family.

"I Do Think You're Sensible."

"But now I must not talk any more as my dinner is coming.

"After my dinner I must have a nap and then I must plan my costume for next winter.

"I always plan and think about my costume, but I always decide to have the same kind.

"You see, it has proved to be a good, satisfactory, handsome winter costume for the Fallow Deer families for years and years, and I don't believe I will change the style!"

"Well," said Billie Brownie, who had been listening to the Fallow Deer, "I do think you're sensible to keep to the same style of costume when you have all considered it so satisfactory.

"Then, too, it makes it just about right, I should think, to have one costume for the winter and one for the summer.

"Besides, having the one change keeps you from getting tired of wearing the same thing year in and year out.

"Yet you don't have to worry your Fallow Deer heads too much about thinking what you shall wear this day or the next, what you shall wear on week days or Sundays."

"That's just the way we think about it," said the Fallow Deer.

"They will be interested in hearing your story and of your change in costume summer and winter," Billie Brownie said, "in Brownieland, and Fairyland and Elfland.

"You will perhaps dream of Fairyland as you take your nap.

"And you can dream of hearing me telling all the little fairies and elves and brownies and gnomes as they sit around the Fairyland wood of what you have told me.

"You can see them, in your dreams, putting aside their magic wands and listening, oh, so attentively, to what goes on in Fallow Deer families.

"Goodby! May you have a good dinner, a pleasant nap, an interesting dream."

"Goodby," said the Fallow Deer. "Thank you for calling and thank you for not staying too long when I am a bit hungry and a bit sleepy."

SALADS

The salads which follow may be properly termed national as they are the favorite salads of the people in several countries or localities, the name of which is given to the salad:

French Potato Salad.—Cut cold boiled potatoes into dice, add one small onion finely-chopped, a few tablespoonfuls of finely-chopped chives and a tablespoonful of minced parsley. Let stand for an hour or two to season with a French dressing, adding a generous amount of cayenne. Serve on lettuce and top each serving with a spoonful of rich mayonnaise; sprinkle with minced chives.

German Salad With Sausage.—Boil four breakfast sausages twenty minutes, cut into half-inch pieces. Boil one-half pound of sauerkraut ten minutes, drain and cool and mix with the sausage. Cut thin slices of winter radish into very thin slices and arrange around the dish, sprinkle with finely-minced shallot, pickles and capers. Serve with French dressing.

Cuban Salad.—Break four or five dry soda crackers, shred two green peppers, slice one Spanish onion very thin, skin, bone and chop six anchovies. Serve on lettuce with French dressing.

Montese Salad.—Bake four mild-flavored onions until tender, remove the peeling and put a lump of butter on each with salt and pepper. When cold cut into quarters and mix with four hard cooked eggs cut into quarters and six sardines boned and chopped. Add parsley and a teaspoonful of curry to a boiled dressing and serve.

Russian Tomato and Sardine Salad.—Arrange a bed of lettuce in a salad bowl. Peel four tomatoes of medium size, cut fine and mix with a few sardines boned and chopped. Place on lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

Chicken Salad a la American.—To one cupful of finely-minced cooked chicken add one cupful of tender celery finely cut, one apple minced fine, one-half of a green pepper also minced. Mix with a highly seasoned boiled dressing and serve on lettuce.

Power From Niagara

While prolonged negotiations over St. Lawrence river water power proceed at the state capital of New York the greatest St. Lawrence power development of them all—at Niagara falls—steadily produces a vast amount of energy every day that is used all over the Northeast. Whereas forty years ago the total power produced was 2,000 horsepower, today the total rated capacity of machinery generating electricity by the aid of falling water at and near the famous falls is 1,400,000 horsepower. Actually only 1,000,000 horsepower of this is at work because of limitations upon the use of Niagara water power imposed by the power treaty between the United States and Canada, but 1,000,000 horsepower is enough to perform a vast amount of work for the people of this country.

Largest Snake on Record

The longest snake of which there is authentic record was a python captured in Malaysia and shipped to the Tierpark at Hamburg, Germany. This snake died immediately after reaching port, and was stretched on the deck of the steamer and measured by Dr. Arthur Irwin, then director of the Philadelphia Zoological society. It measured a few inches over 30 feet in length and weighed close to 300 pounds. This species, the regal or reticulated python (Python reticulatus) is the largest species of serpent. It is alleged to attain a length of 33 feet. The South American anaconda is also alleged to attain a similar length, but Raymond Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the New York Zoological park, doubts very much if it ever grows longer than 25 feet.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Italy has lent 200,000,000 lire to Rumania, and no doubt that's all right enough, but it's pretty hard to understand how some of these European countries that have such urgent need to borrow can manage to lend.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Thursday, October 7.

WGY and WMAK will open the feature broadcasting Thursday at 7:45 with a program from Syracuse University. Two high lights are listed for 8:30, WEAF radiating an orchestral concert with Michael Zacharewitch, violinist, playing the solo parts and KDKA presenting its weekly "Famous Composer" period. At 9:00 WSB will broadcast an old fiddlers' contest; the WJZ chain will feature the Salon orchestra, and WGBS will radiate music of the Navy Yard Band. The Erie Canal centennial dinner will come from the microphone of WNYC at 9:15. The comic opera, "The Gondoliers" will be broadcast by [illegible] "Wizard of the Nile," will be presented by a cast from KGO at 11:00. Matthew S. Sloan, president of the Brooklyn Edison Co., and Edgar Guest, poet, will address a banquet at Utica at 10:00 which will be broadcast by WGY.

THATCHER
BOILERS-FURNACES-RANGES

Rest

Your wife will appreciate, throughout the day, the small amount of attention this simple, economical furnace requires—and in the evening you will be able to more thoroughly enjoy your well-earned rest.

Economical in both first cost and fuel consumption, the Thatcher "[illegible] Pipeless" will prove a most satisfying furnace, and one that will keep your house comfortably warm in the coldest weather.

Mail coupon below and let us send you literature describing the efficient and economical Thatcher "[illegible] Pipeless"

The warm air from the Thatcher "[illegible] Pipeless" furnace rises through a centrally located register to all the rooms. When cool it is drawn back to the furnace and is reheated, re-heated and re-circulated, thus insuring a constant flow of evenly heated "moist" air. Write today.

My colored clothes wash brighter

—this easy way

IT'S wonderful to watch everything come out so fresh and clean. I never knew colored things could get so bright and new-looking. And I don't even touch a washboard.

I just soak the wash in rich Rinso suds. Dirt and stains float off by themselves. Clothes get whiter and brighter than I could scrub them.

Rinso is a granulated laundry soap, and it's all I need on washday. No bar soaps, chips or harsh chemicals. I like it because it softens the water and gives thick suds.

So easy on my hands! They don't get a bit red or washworn. Ask your grocer for

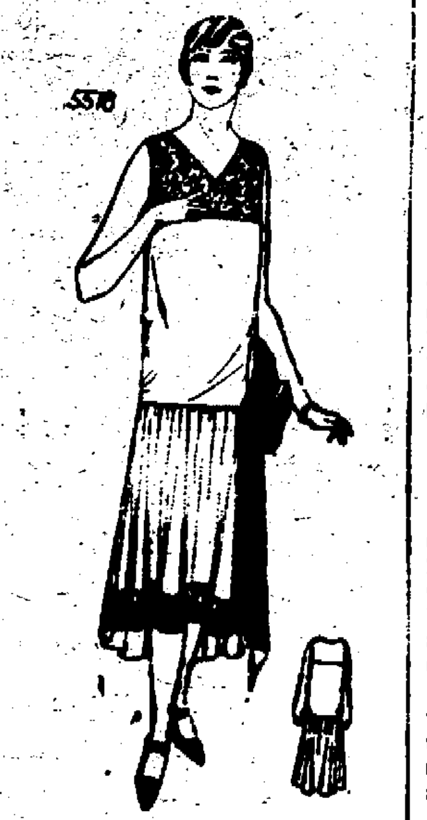
OUR DAILY PATTERN.



A Pretty Frock For Dinner or Dance Occasions.

5518.—Satin, crepe or taffeta would be attractive for this model with trimming of lace or embroidered banding.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. A 18 year size requires 3 yards of 40 inch material together with ⅝ yard of contrasting material for yoke portions and a five inch fold at lower edge of the skirt, if made without sleeves. If made with sleeves as in the small view, and of one material 4⅜ yards is required. The width of the skirt at the lower edge is 2⅜ yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any person on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice:

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Fall and Winter 1926 Book of Fashions, showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various, simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Protective Garments

Plate glass overalls, masks and gloves have been designed for chemists in mixing acids, powders and other inflammable materials. The development of the suits was forced by dangerous fires that injure workers who mix tracer bullet material. The powder used is so explosive that it is often ignited by static electricity. Glass uniforms are made of small plates of material bound together by copper wire.

Carbon Dioxide Used to Stimulate Plants

If some one should tell you that you might run a pipe from your chimney to the back-yard garden and use the coal gas from your furnace to fertilize vegetables and flowers you probably would laugh at the idea. Yet virtually that same thing is being done today.

In remarkable experiments, conducted in plant laboratories near New York city, plants are being made to grow and flourish as never before on a simple diet of carbon dioxide—the gas of combustion given off by the very furnaces used to warm the greenhouse in which the plants are grown!

That such things have proved possible is due to comparatively recent scientific discoveries concerning the manner in which plants breathe and draw nourishment from the atmosphere, the sunshine and the earth. For one thing, plants breathe like animals. A plant takes in oxygen through tiny openings in its leaves, much as we breathe through our noses, and it gives off carbon dioxide.

Under the influence of sunlight, however, the plant, while breathing oxygen, also draws in carbon dioxide and uses this gas to manufacture the starch on which its growth depends. Now, by supplying this gas in the greenhouse at certain times of the day, we can make the plants grow from two to three times as fast as they would ordinarily, and more luxuriantly.—Popular Science Monthly.

Clock Could Do Most Everything but Talk

A clock that showed the motions of the sun, marked the years and some historical events was completed by Felix Meyer of New York in 1880 after 10 years' work and experimenting. It showed local time, the hours, minutes, seconds, the days of the weeks and months, the seasons, the signs of the zodiac, the revolution of the earth around the sun and on its own axis, the movements of the planets around the sun and the phases of the moon. It showed the difference in time at Washington, San Francisco, Chicago, Cairo, Melbourne, Constantinople, Peking, London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg (Leningrad). A child struck the quarter hour, a youth the half hour, an old man the three-quarters and death the hour; while Washington rose from his seat and, extending his right hand, presented the Declaration of Independence, a servant entered the door and all the Presidents of the United States entered and saluted Washington and passed out through another door.

Rebuke From the Unknown

In the Harbinger of Light (Melbourne) the editor tells a good story against himself.

Some years ago, when having his first sitting with a trance medium, to whom he was a complete stranger, a communication was received from an aunt whose unkind treatment of him as a boy in England had caused him to leave home. She now expressed regret for her conduct, and was freely forgiven.

The amazing part of the interview came at the end, when he was admonished: "Don't let me hear you tell your wife again that I was a shallow-minded woman." These were the exact words used by the writer to his wife when news of the death of this aunt in England reached him in Australia nine years previously.

Famous Gutenberg Bible

Gutenberg produced his first book at Maintz between the years 1452 and 1456—while the Turks were storming Constantinople, and the Wars of the Roses were beginning in England—nearly 40 years before Columbus had sighted America.

The book itself is a splendid folio, without title page or date, and contains 641 printed leaves. So that Goldston paid for his copy at the rate of near $350 for each leaf.

Ten complete copies on vellum are known to exist, and 22 complete copies on paper. It is often called the "Gutenberg Bible," or the "Mazarin Bible" —because the copy of it which first attracted the notice of scholars was in the library of the famous Cardinal Mazarin.

Crabs as Prospectors

Agile enough to climb coconut trees, the land crabs infesting the little island of Utilla, off the coast of Honduras, were formerly looked upon as a nuisance. But recently the sixteen-year-old son of one of the inhabitants made a remarkable discovery by their aid.

Near one of the crabs' holes, which they burrow in the ground like rabbits, he noticed some black, strong-smelling mud excavated by the crabs.

Experts examined this substance and pronounced it to be high-grade petroleum. It had long been suspected that oil existed on the island, but this was the first "strike."

Just Fit

The teacher had explained that an anonymous person was one who did not wish to be known. A little later in the lesson some one in the class laughed out loud and lessons were halted.

"Who laughed?" demanded the teacher.

"An anonymous person," promptly replied King Bennet, Jr.

Announcement is made in New York that Babe Ruth has signed a contract for $100,000 for 12 weeks of vaudeville.

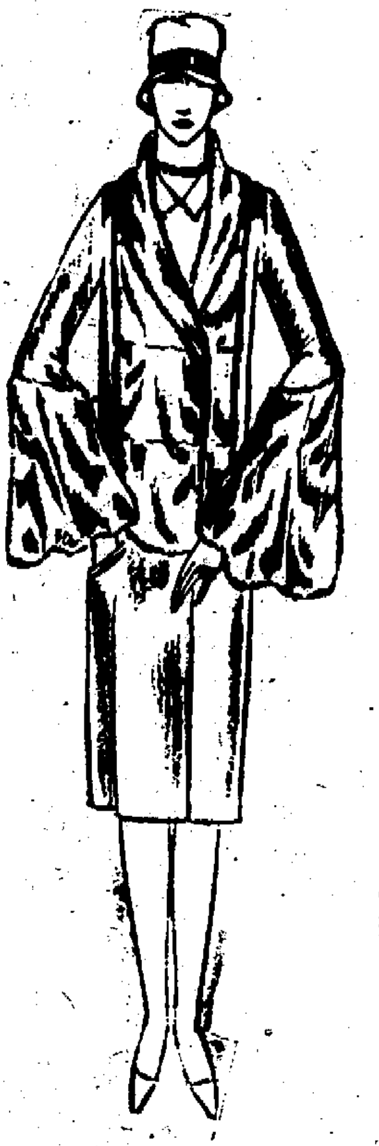
On Fashions

Fur Coats Have a Great Deal in Common With Cloth Ones—Brandt Uses Light Fur on Dark Cloth—Patou is Inclined Toward Straight Lines.

Patou, who enjoys a great popularity in America as well as throughout Europe, is inclined strongly to straight-lined coats for afternoon and morning, but is quite willing to reverse this decision for evening wraps. His very modish coats, contrary to other opinions, rarely blouse.

Sometimes he uses strapped seams to gain his point, and has used with great success a cloth rather like a British army officer's coat, strapping it to add further to its swank. He, like nearly everyone else, sponsors the cape coat, but uses this idea only within certain restricted areas. The cape-coat is not characteristic of this maison.



Even Fur Coats, Such as Antelope or Calf, Have Full Sleeves, This Being a Generally Approved Model.

Light-weight woolens in all-over geometric pattern and furs that are very supple are used with excellent effect this season, and, there being no reason why furs of this character should not be modeled after cloth coats, there is no ruling against full sleeves and any of the season's best coat features. Raglan sleeves are very much in demand just now, while, as every one surely knows by this time, dolman and full sleeves generally are really the outstanding style feature of a season by no means devoid of style interest.

One can hardly overestimate the importance of the handsome cloth coat, fur-trimmed—or, more especially, fur-lined. Fur applique in floral design sounds like an ultra treatment, yet Brandt scored with models so trimmed. Another feature of the Brandt collection that tends toward the extraordinary is that light furs are chosen to trim dark cloth.

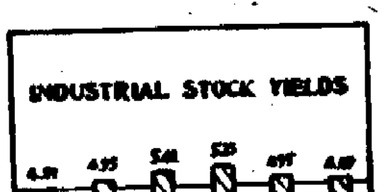
STOCK DISTRIBUTION CONTINUES.

Babson Park, Mass., Oct. 7.—(Special). The stock market as a whole has continued high, but since early in September there has been noticed more interest in railroad securities. Among industrial stocks in particular, distribution has continued. On the average, they yielded the highest (5.23%) last May.



So far as the motor stocks are concerned it is well to remember that although total production and sales of automobiles this year will probably somewhat exceed the results reported for 1925, the proportion of the total business done by the various companies is changing. Some companies have done better and some not so good. Competition is severe. Among the larger companies, General Motors, Nash, Dodge and Chrysler seem to do very much better than Ford, Studebaker and Willys Overland. The latter group have thus far produced less cars this year than last.

Lights "Hubby" Home

Only the female lightning bug makes light. The male is not equipped with any illuminating power. He has the habit of going out nights, however, so the female has had to make use of her ability to make part of her body shine with a sort of phosphorous green light in order to show him the way home.

"I couldn't believe all the wonderful things she said about it"

A New Jersey matron finds a famous table delicacy gives her new skill with pastries

"I LEARNED of First Prize Nut Margarine through a friend," this enthusiastic young housewife wrote us. "At first I couldn't believe all the wonderful things that she said about it, but I thought I would try it out and see what I could do.

"I had planned a cake for dinner and I chose my regular Chocolate Nut Cake recipe, using First Prize in place of my usual shortening. If I had any doubts, they were dispelled when my husband took his first bite."

• • • • •

First Prize Nut Margarine is used on a million tables as a delicious spread for bread, toast, rolls. Now it is found also to give new skill in cooking.

First Prize is made from the pure, nutritious kernels of cocoanuts and peanuts, with pasteurized milk. Not only does it make delicious and digestible cakes and pastries, flaky pie crusts, and the lightest of biscuits and rolls, but it is wonderful for all cooking.

Melt First Prize over vegetables, mix it in white sauces, add it to give body to gravies and soups. It does not brown in the pan, and is not absorbed by the food. Try it and see.

MRS. SMITH'S CHOCOLATE NUT CAKE RECIPE

½ cup First Prize ½ cup sour cream or milk
1½ cups granulated sugar 2 well beaten eggs
½ teaspoon soda 1½ cups sifted flour
½ cake bitter chocolate melted in ½ cup hot water
1 heaping teaspoon baking powder

Cream First Prize, gradually add sugar and eggs. Add alternately sour cream, to which soda has been added, and sifted flour with baking powder. Then add chocolate, flavor with vanilla, and bake in moderate oven.

NUT MARGARINE

A delicious spread for bread

As a spread for bread, rolls, toast, waffles, sandwiches, First Prize is delicious. Mix it, if you like, to mellow yellow with the little vegetable coloring capsule in each package. But First Prize flavor is as delicate and delicious, either way.

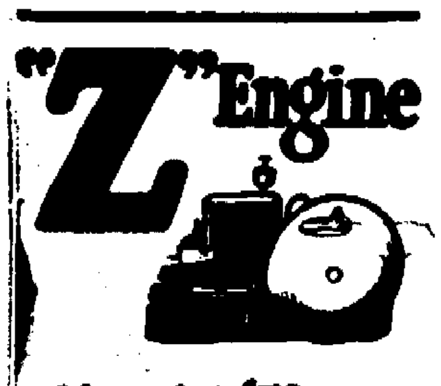
"Z" Engine



—biggest value "dollar-for-dollar"

WHEN you invest in an engine, the biggest value is the one that gives you the most dependable service, lasts the longest and costs the least over a period of years.

That's why a half million farmers have bought "Z" Engines. These famous power plants are made in the world's largest and finest engine factory. The country's foremost engineers design and develop them. While the "Z" has less parts subject to wear, these parts are carefully made, are drop forged and specially heat treated.

Invest in a "Z." Make sure of dependable power. Yet you will spend less than for ordinary engines! Sizes from 2 to 20 horsepower. Come in and let us show you part by part why the "Z" is the biggest dollar-for-dollar value!

HEAVY VEHICLES TO BE WEIGHED

A loadometer, an apparatus for weighing vehicles on the road, has been put in operation by the Minnesota State highway department. This action was taken after several instances of serious damage to highways had been reported to the department from various parts of the state.

The apparatus will be stationed along the highway and drivers of vehicles that appear to be close to the legal limit will be asked to stop and be weighed. The delay will be only a minute, provided they are within the law; if not, the delay may be longer.

This does not necessarily mean that they will be taken before a local justice and prosecuted on the first offense. They may be given an opportunity to reduce the load and keep within the law. Records will be kept of all offenders, however, and if anyone is found guilty of exceeding the maximum load more than once, every effort will be made to have an adequate penalty imposed.

Before undertaking the weighing, officials of the department interviewed a number of sheriffs and county attorneys. All of them are aware of the damage which may be done to highways by excessive loads, and they have all given assurance of full cooperation with the department. Where arrest and prosecution is necessary, this will be in the hands of county or other local officials, as state highway department officials and employees do not have police power, but the weighing will be done by the department.

The maximum load permitted by law on one vehicle of four wheels or less is 28,000 pounds gross. The maximum weight permitted on one axle is 22,400 pounds and the weight on each wheel must not exceed 800 pounds per inch width of tire. The width of a tire is defined as the distance between the flanges of the rim.

The weighing apparatus will be moved from time to time to various places in the state. No announcement is made of where the weighing will be done.

The size of vehicles and loads is also limited by law to a width of 8 feet and a height of 12 feet 6 inches. No single vehicle shall be over 30 feet and no combination of vehicles more than 85 feet. An exception is made in favor of traction engines, which may be 9 feet wide. Other vehicles exceeding the legal size or width may be operated on the highways in exceptional cases if the owner gets written permission from the authorities in charge of the highway.

Tennessee to Put Stop to Highway Sign Peril

At the heels of the general warnings that unrestricted billboard advertising on highways is a menace to the motorists comes the announcement from Tennessee that a campaign is under way in that state to clear the roads of the sign peril. It is under the direction of the department of highways and public works of that state. For some time the department has been removing disfiguring signs from the state roads, in accordance with the law created by the state legislature in 1925, which makes it unlawful for anyone to erect a sign of any character on the right of way of all sections of the state highway system outside the limits of incorporated towns.

Investigation of this type of outdoor advertising with the idea of ascertaining how it may best be controlled in the interest of conserving the beauty and desirability of residence districts in cities and of scenic countrysides will be undertaken by the National Association of Real Estate Boards following a conference on city planning held by the association in connection with its recent annual convention, at which conference the advisability of such control was discussed.

Big Six Custom Brougham

The lowest price ever placed on a Big Six four-door enclosed car

At its new low price of $1785, the Studebaker Big Six Custom Brougham is the crowning triumph of One-Profit manufacture. Only seven American cars are given a higher power rating, and they cost from two to five times more.

The long, low-swung custom contour of this smart car is agleam with lustrous duotone lacquers. Four wide doors open into a luxurious interior, richly upholstered in fine Chase mohair, and replete with such refinements as Butler finish hardware, broadlace trim, silken shades and toggle grips.

More than $100 worth of extra equipment is included without extra cost. A patented no-draft ventilating windshield (exclusively Studebaker) assures perfect ventilation.

The Big Six Custom Brougham is powered by the famous Studebaker Big Six L-head motor—first to beat the schedules of the fastest transcontinental trains from New York to San Francisco. Its remarkable freedom from vibration is insured by Studebaker's big crankshaft, fully machined and dynamically balanced. Its long life is attested by reports from more than 800 Studebaker owners who have driven their cars 100,000 miles or more.

The Big Six has long outsold every other car in the world of equal or greater rated horsepower. Now comes this amazing new Big Six value. See it today while immediate delivery is possible.

LAN MARBLE SHAFT FOR HISTORIC SPOT

ite of Fort Washington to Be Preserved.

Elaborate plans have been made for storing historic Fort Washington and cking the site with a suitable me- orial. A portion of the ground occu- ed by the fort has been set aside re- ntly as a public park. The plans in- de the rebuilding of the famous mparts and other details of the ronghold in their original form. From e site of the fort will also rise a eat marble shaft, similar to the unker Hill monument, but rising to greater altitude and set upon a more aborate base.

The Fort Washington monument will e to a height of 200 feet from the est of the highest ground on Man- ttan island. It will easily dominate e northern regions of the city and a conspicuous landmark from the rbor as well as from points up the udson river.

Despite New York's wealth of his- ric associations it has no adequate emorial of the Revolutionary period. is considered especially fitting that ch a memorial should take form as the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Revolution. The Fort Washington shaft will doubtless be pointed out in future as one of the show places of New York.

The restoration of the fort will be carried out with intelligence and sympathy. By a fortunate chance a considerable portion of the area occupied by the main fortifications has been preserved. When the city came to be laid out, several streets crossed the site and rows of apartment houses now closely encroach upon all sides. The greater part of the fortifications on the south, however, has not been built upon in a century and a half. A slight elevation may still be observed which once formed part of the ramparts.

The historians who have made a study of this region have been aided by several old maps which show in detail the original forms of the fortification. With these guides much of the ground once covered by the fort has been carefully dug over and the earth sifted for relics of the past. Many interesting mementoes have been discovered, including hundreds of buttons from the uniforms of the soldiers once encamped here, which serve to identify the various regiments of both armies. Many years ago when a farmhouse was built here many tons of cannonballs and other relics were discovered and sold as junk.

The monument will be built of granite, including the elaborate colonnade. Although its general lines suggest the Washington and the Bunker Hill monuments, the shaft at Fort Washington will have several distinctive features. The graceful colonnade or peristyle at its base will be an interesting decorative feature. This in turn will be banked by groups of trees and thick foliage.

The shaft will be ornamented with appropriate designs which will relieve the rigid appearance of so tall a marble.

Dog's Foot Fired Gun

Minus one eye and two fingers an Austrian game warden named Kurzbauer is now convalescing in the Vienna hospital from the effects of gunshot wounds inflicted by his own dog. Kurzbauer left his loaded gun leaning on the end of the boat while he jumped out to make the anchor rope fast. While Kurzbauer was busy with the rope the dog made a spring for the shore. One of the dog's feet had been resting on the trigger of the gun and as he jumped he fired the gun. Kurzbauer, who was bending over at the time received part of the charge in his left eye and part in his left hand.

Knotty Legal Problem

Divorce news from San Francisco: To whom does the warm spot in the bed belong on a cold night—the wife who first climbed between the icy sheets or the husband who comes home later and demands the coveted place as lord of the household? Superior Judge Van Nostrand has the perplexing problem to decide in the divorce suit of Mrs. Anna Weisinger and Jack Weisinger. The testimony was that the police were called to the Weisinger home one night last winter to quiet a war that started when Weisinger ordered his wife to move over and she insisted on remaining in the spot she had warmed up.—From "Americana" in the American Mercury.

Fruit Washed by Machines

Washing machines have been developed for service in the apple-packing industry. The fruit is cleaned, all residue from spraying removed, and the color of the fruit heightened by the friction by means of 500 bits of canvas whipped on and about the apples as they pass over the revolving rollers, with a fan for removing all particles of dust. The treatment insures sanitary fruit and adds greatly to its appearance.

WALLKILL.

Wallkill, Oct. 7.—This community was saddened recently by the news of the death of Mrs. Jerome V. Nagle, September 25, at Mt. MacGregor, New York. Mrs. Nagle had been in ill health for some time, leaving her home here about a year ago hoping to regain her health at Mt. MacGregor. In June she underwent an operation for appendicitis, after which she failed to improve. Mrs. Nagle had just passed her twenty-sixth birthday. She was a young woman of sterling qualities and of high Christian character. She had a wide circle of friends, for to know her was to love her. She was a member of the New Hurley Reformed Church and of the Young Women's Club of New Hurley and the Plattekill Grange. She is survived by her husband, one son, David J., age 18 months, her parents and two sisters, Mrs. Alice Lozier and Miss May Johnson of Brooklyn. To them this community extends their deepest sympathy in their bereavement. The funeral was held at Hollis, Long Island, where the profusion of floral tributes testified to the high esteem in which she was held.

The next meeting of Plattekill Grange, No. 323, will be held on Saturday evening, October 9, with the following committees in charge: Entertainment—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Everett, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hedges. Refreshment—Mr. and Mrs. William Harris, Lolita Harris, Mr. and Mrs. George Fowler, Larry Fowler, Mr and Mrs. George Birdsall and Emilie Hoettler. Preceding the program a memorial service will be held in honor of Mrs. J. V. Nagle, a former lecturer of the Grange, who died on September 25, at Mt. MacGregor, N. Y.

Mrs. Clarence W. Kittle of Casper, Wyoming, was a guest at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Everett last week.

Women Do Inside Painting

Women are proving themselves capable of holding down another man's job—interior house painting. In New York many women are now engaged in this occupation. One woman has gone into the business on a comparatively large scale, but she employs women only. Many of them are ambitious artists and some chorus girls who for the present have no footlights. It is claimed that these girl painters are much in demand because some people think that the feminine touch is more careful and artistic than the masculine. Then, too, many people dislike to have strange men about the house.—Exchange.

GEM CALLED ENEMY OF GRIEF AND WOE

Sardonyx Also Associated With Religion.

The sardonyx, the natal stone for August, is the gem of self-control. It is symbolic of matrimonial bliss, and according to ancient belief, girls born in August will never marry if they fail to wear this stone. The sardonyx is under the heavenly Leo of the Zodiac, the sign of sensation and feeling, and to it is attributed the power of banishing grief and woe. As late as the Middle ages sardonyx was used as a remedy for scrofula and other skin diseases, and even today it is employed in Persia as a cure for epilepsy.

This stone was first made fashionable in Rome by Scipio Africanus, the elder, two centuries before Christ, who, it is said, believed in its spiritual virtue. Throughout its history sardonyx has been associated with religion, for it was one of the stones in the breastplate of the ancient Hebrews and is mentioned in Revelations as forming a part of the foundation of the holy city. The ancient Egyptians carved from this stone the sacred scarab, which was a sign of their religion, much in the same way as the cross is the symbol of Christianity.

Sardonyx is a variety of chalcedonic quartz composed of different colored layers. In its commonest form it exhibits sard, reddish brown in color, alternating with white chalcedony, the latter formerly called onyx. This stone, however, not infrequently displays as many as four or five colors, and by artificial processes lasting and pleasing color effects may be had in the various shades of yellow, red, brown and orange. This artistic display of colors makes it highly desirable for cameo manufacture, since the different layers are utilized appropriately in the finished engraving. Many of the famous cameos of history are cut from this stone. In olden times the requirements for a high-grade sardonyx cameo was a black base for humility, a white zone for virtue and a layer of red or brown for fearlessness, but many of the latter cameos cut in this stone display as many as five differently colored zones. The largest known sardonyx cameo, a five-layer stone, 12 by 10 inches, was formerly in the possession of Cardinal Carpagna, but is now in the Vatican at Rome. The famous Sainte Chapelle, 11 by 13 inches, the second largest sardonyx cameo, was also a five-layer stone. This cameo, now in the Bibliotheque Nationale at Paris, was long thought to typify the triumph of Joseph in Egypt and was regarded as a sacred relic.

Perhaps the most famous stone cameo in history was a sardonyx upon which Queen Elizabeth's portrait was cut. According to tradition, this cameo was set in the famous ring which she gave the earl of Essex as a pledge of her friendship. When sentenced to death, Essex sent this ring to his cousin, Lady Scroop, to deliver to Elizabeth. By mistake the messenger gave the ring to Lady Scroop's sister, Countess Nottingham, an enemy of the earl; the vengeful countess did not deliver the talismanic ring and in consequence the fated earl was executed. The Countess Nottingham confessed this act of vengeance to Elizabeth when the countess was on her deathbed, which, according to the chroniclers of Elizabeth's life history, so infuriated the queen that she shook the dying noblewoman, saying, "God may forgive you, but I cannot."

Indians' Odd Immunity

The American Indian is naturally immune to scarlet fever, believes Dr. N. P. Sherwood, of the University of Kansas, who has made an extensive study of the disease among Indians. Doctor Sherwood bases his conclusions on observations made at Haskell Institute, at Lawrence, Kan., on questionnaires sent to nearly 100 Indian agencies, and on the testimony of 84 physicians who have had many years of experience in treating Indians. Only 12 of the 84 physicians reported ever having found the disease among Indians, 6 were in doubt and 66 reported that they had never observed it among their patients.

Baby, Don't Suck Thumb

A nation of bulldog jaws and prominent chins were promised America if mothers keep the baby's thumb out of his mouth by Dr. W. Stanley Wilkinson of Melbourne, Victoria, Australia, at the session of the first international orthodontic congress.

"Thumb-sucking, even to a slight degree during the first six months of life, has a direct inhibiting action on the normal growth of the mandible or lower jaw. During the first six months of life we should get a much accelerated growth of the mandible as opposed to the maxilla, or upper jaw," she said.

Old Sol Has Fever

According to Martin Gil, Argentine meteorologist, the sun is now suffering from an attack of eruptive fevers which has disturbed the electromagnetism of our planet and has been the cause of the heat waves, floods, earthquakes and other extreme conditions experienced in the northern hemisphere. "The sun," says the scientist, "is always feverish, but it is now in the throes of a very severe attack. The sun spots show us that a most titanic solar agitation is taking place." Calculations show us that such agitations in the sun occur in cycles of about 350 years. The Argentine authority thinks the present one will continue until 1928.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Distribute Fire Extinguishers.

As will be seen by their advertisement in this issue of The Freeman, the McEntee Insurance Agency, through Dwight McEntee, manager, is distributing five hundred one quart chemical fire extinguishers among its policy holders and to the general public. The agency is using this means to do its part in reducing the vast loss of life and property resulting from fires by placing these first aid fire fighting machines in the hands of policyholders. Established in 1877 by the late Girard L. McEntee, this agency will soon observe its golden anniversary of fifty years of service to the insuring public of Ulster county.

Filipinos Take to Wheat

Consumption of wheat flour in the Philippines has increased in the last few years. Figures of the bureau of commerce and industry show that although rice is the chief staple the Filipinos are using bread as a supplementary food generally and in some cases as their principal article of diet. Wheat importations last year were [illegible] tons as compared with [illegible] tons in [illegible]. Four-fifths came from the United States.

Metals Long Used

Gold probably was the first metal used by man, and the arbitrary value assigned to it for its supposed magical qualities initiated a world-wide quest for it and made it a potent factor in shaping the history of civilization. Copper and tin, also found in their [illegible] state, may have been used by prehistoric man.

Word's Meaning Changed

A cockney is a native of London or one born within the sound of "Bow Bells." Originally it meant a spoiled or effeminate boy. It is derived from the word "cockering," meaning foolishly petting a person. Halliwell states that some writers trace the word to the imaginary land of Cockayne, the lubber land of olden times.

COMMUNICATION HUB OF ATLANTIC

Fayal Island, Scene of Recent Earthquake, Is an Interesting Place.

Washington.—"For most matters of importance to the world, Fayal island, scene of the recent earthquake, is the Azores," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"That Sao Miguel is larger there is no disputing. That Angra, the capital, is a better port than Horta, may also be true.

"But Fayal," continues the bulletin, "is the communication hub of the Atlantic, with spokes reaching out to Europe, the two Americas and Africa. On Fayal island there are four cable companies, two American, one English and one German. There are more than 150 young 'news pushers,' as the dispatching operators are called, and each group has its own mess.

"Arriving at Fayal in the daytime one saw a ribbon of road around the island, and the whitewashed villages with a church for a pendant among the ivory bits that are strung along this 35-mile circular tour. Out near some detached rocks near the west end there is a lighthouse which appears at first to be a minaret. From there to Horta, the town, is a steep declivity several hundred feet high so that the road has to sweep up to avoid washing itself to death in the glistening surf.

"Amid smiling seas the Azores, from November to March, usually wear a cloud blanket so that the fine cone of Pico, which sounds like Orange Pekoe, but simply means 'peak,' is hidden as an aproaching ship swings to the north. Pico has a separate island to itself and since Pico is an active volcano this is as it should be.

The "Fairy Town of Horta."

"Twilight had fallen when the writer's vessel finally came alongside the fairy town of Horta, now made up of white blotches against a dark hillside with electric lights hiding the details like the nun's candles during the change of scene in 'The Miracle.' Horta is not really a port, since it lacks a green light to complement the red one on the end of the single breakwater. So passengers land in a launch which tosses up and down in the swell and gives the folks a thrill for their money.

"A Portuguese, with wide-brimmed fuzzy hat, V-neck white sweater and sideburns, ran the launch. He took a shine to us and showed us around the town which, like a certain flower, had folded itself up with the setting of the sun.

"Horta's chief claim to fame seems to be that Mark Twain and the cable companies have honored it with their attention. Mark said something about a tiny fort here which would have to be taken back up the volcanic slopes in case of war. That was in the days before the Azores were the alighting spot for transoceanic flights.

"Horta greets one with a mosaic sidewalk in the Portuguese style and many of its buildings are faced with glistening tile so that as one walks down the street at night he seems to be threading his way along some peculiar bathroom in an old Mogul palace or a Chicago boarding house. The solid-wheeled oxcarts were parked at odd points here and there and, in the night time, the only vehicles to be had are automobiles.

"The street as we walked down it, and passed so many churches that Horta seemed to be the Bokhara of the Catholic world, was being used for sentimental purposes, for Horta has its nightly rehearsals of the balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet. The balconies are narrow and long, looking like sample bits of steel fence hung up on display.

In a Horta Movie.

"Our side-burned mentor took us to a movie theater fronted with salmon tiles. We secured a box in the lower of three horseshoes around which the town was arranged. If the social strata maintained the same relative positions at home that they do in the theater, then the Horta palaces would be down near the sea and the lowlier and more grimy members of society up near the lava line above the main part of the town.

"From June to September the whole island of Fayal is marked out with blue and white hydrangea hedges and is one of the loveliest spots on earth, with sometimes-smoking Pico 'Fujiyamaing' in the background.

"The Azores are certainly the result of tremendous volcanic eruptions that have continued to change their physical aspect ever since their discovery in the Fifteenth century. On every hand are evidences of former upheavals, from the gray lava stones that are used in the construction of houses and the building of roads to the underlying streaks of ashes that are visible in places where the surface soil has washed away, and the many cup-shaped craters and beautiful lakes on the tops of the mountains.

"Violent earthquakes have disturbed the Azores during the centuries since their discovery. The annals of the islands vie with those of Italy in graphic accounts of the ever-interesting and terrible volcanic phenomena. Cities were buried, mountains disappeared and sent their ashes to unbelievable distances; islands hundreds of feet high suddenly appeared and as suddenly disappeared, and flames of fire illuminated whole islands and their intervening waters."

Coloring of Bricks

Common bricks are red because there is iron in the clay. Ordinary white bricks owe their color to lime. Lime and iron make a cream-colored brick. Brown bricks are due to the presence of magnesia, and yellow bricks to a combination of magnesia and iron.

She Spied

Agnes Callahan, maid at a Los Angeles hotel, said she saw Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio operator, enter the room of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, who was accused of conspiracy in connection with her disappearance.

Babe Ruth Hit ThreeHomeRuns, Set New Records

Yankees Seemed to Have Hit Batting Stride Taking Fourth Game and Tieing Series—Fresh Pitchers Expected to Work In Today's Game.

St. Louis, Oct. 7 (AP).—Boards of strategy of the Cardinals today were in conference to devise ways and means, if any, to curb the home run activities of George Herman Ruth. As preparations went forward for the fifth and last game of the world series in St. Louis, the big bat of the slugging Ruth was regarded as a distinct menace to St. Louis's aspirations for world supremacy in baseball.

The home run situation was entirely out of control in the fourth game of the series, when Ruth three times hit for the circuit and so inspired his mates that a ten to five Yankee victory made the series all even again.

Cardinal rooters thought that Ruth's impressive offensive yesterday could be diagnosed as only a light attack of fever for that portion of the St. Louis pitching staff, five in number, called to labor during the afternoon. Yankee enthusiasts insisted that it was a stroke of paralysis.

Tribute to Ruth.

Ruth's record-breaking series of long distance blows drew unstinted applause from the greatest crowd ever assembled in a St. Louis baseball park—the paid attendance being 38,825. Many of the assembly came to scoff and remained to cheer. The player with baseball's greatest punch was formally initiated into the order of the razzberry before the game but the crowd paid tribute to his greatness when showed just how far the science of home run hitting can be developed and jeered at Hallahan when he permitted discretion to prove the better part of valor and walked the Babe on four straight balls in the eighth. The crowd had properly reached a conclusion that the ball game was lost to the Cardinals anyway and since one home run, more or less, meant nothing in an affair like yesterday, seemed to hope that Ruth would give future generations something to shoot at by lifting another pitch out of the park. The fifth game was promised fair weather with rising temperatures. A perfect baseball day yesterday restored confidence in a weather man who had lost many friends Tuesday and plans for today's game went forward without hesitation.

Only fresh pitchers were expected to replace the overworked corps on duty yesterday. Hafey and Douthit, who did a tumbling act in the fourth inning, completed a recovery that was begun soon after their collision, for both distinguished themselves later in a game which developed few Cardinal features. Each hit safely and Douthit threw out a runner at the plate.

Pitching Choices.

For pitching choices today Managers Huggins and Hornsby were expected to turn back to the page of the score book showing the opening game of the series when Herb Pennock downed Willie Sherdel, 2 to 1. There was a possibility that Hornsby at the last minute might call on Grover Cleveland Alexander but Sherdel was regarded as the more likely nominee, with Alexander, the great, saved for service at the Yankee Stadium Saturday. Sherdel has a slow curve and one a bit slower, and while experts agreed that his curves can be hit into the right field stands, they said such a feat is not easy. Pennock is rated among the best of American League pitchers and held the Cardinals to three hits in the opening game of this world series.

Yesterday's result drew the loudest cheers from representatives of railroads under tentative contract to transport both ball clubs and others interested in the current play back to New York to close the baseball field for the year. Special trains were scheduled to leave immediately after today's game and due to reach New York early Friday evening.

The fourth game resulted in merit badges for Babe Ruth and demerits for the Cardinal pitchers. St. Louis introduced five tenants of the pitchers' box for brief periods of occupancy and four of them distributed ten bases on balls.

Reinhart Was Generous.

Reinhart was generous to a fault. He sat in on the game in the fifth inning after Rhem had retired under fire, although technically moving out to make room for a pinch hitter to hit a sacrifice fly. The lefthander passed Combs, and permitted Koenig to drop a Texas leaguer into right, converted into a two base hit by way of an unintentional kick from Hornsby and a mud puddle. Reinhart then began to give bases on balls with apparent abandon. After he sent Ruth, Meusel and Gehrig to first without an opportunity to hit the ball, he was removed from the cast.

Herman Bell, who responded with alacrity to a summons to get the invaders out, did so with despatch but two of the outs were made at the cost of New York runs. Other Yankee runs developed as the game wore on but these were enough, added to two personally conducted across the plate by Ruth and another scored during the tumbling act of Hafey and Douthit.

Hoyt, serving for the American League entry, was prodigal with hits, but stingy with runs. He permitted as many safeties as the quintet of Cardinals yielded but except in two innings kept them scattered. With perfect support he would have escaped unharmed in the four chukker when three St. Louis runs were counted.

SPORT INTEREST REVIVED BY PAGE

Indiana Athletics Expected to Show Upward Trend.

With Pat Page as head football coach athletics at the University of Indiana are expected to show a decided trend upward. Page won his spurs as an athlete at the University of Chicago and there first attracted attention as a coach of above average ability.

After serving at Chicago as an assistant to Alonzo Stagg on the football field and as head coach of the basket ball team, he received a call from Butler college in Indiana. At that time he was directing the basket ball team and had developed the five-man defense to a high scale, the first coach in the Big Ten to make use of this type of play.

Butler college was unknown athletically, but Page decided to leave Chicago, and for the last seven years he has been at Butler in charge of all athletics. As had been expected, his basket ball teams were almost unbeatable but his football teams, a sport in which he was not expected to excel as a coach, proved powerful and versatile, ranking with his basket ball quintets. He tried his hand at baseball and while his nines did not compare in winning power with his basket ball and football teams, it was quite evident that he had done well with the limited material.

At Indiana, where the football elevens have been near the bottom of the Big Ten standing in recent years, it is expected that Page will devote the major part of his time to the gridiron sport, but it is hardly likely that Indiana officials will overlook his ability as a court coach.

Bottomley Hits Hard

Jim Bottomley, first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, has had much to do with the splendid showing of his team by his hard hitting. Bottomley is not only a terrific hitter, but his fielding is exceptionally fine.

Bert Ellison Resigns

Bert Ellison recently resigned as manager of the San Francisco Seals. He gave poor health as the reason for his action. Ellison up to this season had been very successful with the Seals, both as manager and player. He became manager in 1923, and gave the fans two pennants and a second-place team. Ellison joined the Seals as player in 1921, going there from the Detroit Tigers. As soon as Ellison resigned, the club appointed Richard Williams, a veteran, who has been handling the Logan team of the Utah-Idaho league. Williams has been in baseball for 25 years.

THE WORLD'S FAVORITE SMOKE-WORDS "HAVE A CAMEL"

Did you ever notice that experienced smokers will offer or ask for a Camel—not just a cigarette? A little observation will reveal the overwhelming preference for Camels—a popularity that has never been equaled in all the history of smoking.

More smokers demand Camels, because Camel is unlike any other cigarette made.

Camel is as different as the rare quality of goodness. This difference costs millions to maintain. The choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown . . . the most skilful blending—that is Camels. More cannot be had at any price. When you light a Camel, you may be sure you are smoking the best.

When invited to have the world's favorite cigarette, accept with pleasure. It will be your personal introduction to the mildest, mellowest blend of choice tobaccos ever produced. "Have a Camel!"

Mountain Vegetation

Lemon and orange trees grow on Mount Etna to a height of 1,300 feet up the mountainside. Above these trees is a zone which rises 1,800 feet. Vines, olives and figs flourish here. From this extends a zone rising to a height of about 6,000 feet, which is a wooded region. Here are oaks, beeches, birches and chestnuts. Above is the bare mountainside.

SAVING TO ATTEND FRANCE CONVENTION

While more than 500 banks in the United States have established American Legion Savings clubs to encourage Legionnaires to save their money for the trip to France with the Legion in 1927, stories are pouring in to the France convention committee of the Legion at Indianapolis of men who are doing extra or unique work to earn additional money for the pilgrimage.

One of these is Charles R. Adams, 20 South Church street, Waynesboro, Pa., a rehabilitated World war veteran who is raising chickens during extra hours. Adams went through the whole gamut of war's horrors, including German prison camps, after he was captured when a tank with which he was serving was hit by shells three times in two gas attacks and finally was set on fire.

Unable to resume his pre-war occupation of machinist's helper, Adams was taught auto ignition. He now is a partner in an auto electrical company, is manager of the electrical department, owns his own home and has three fine children

Directors Named for Boys' Baseball Program

Regional athletic directors to have charge of the American Legion's national baseball program for boys have been appointed by Frank C. Cross, director of the National American commission, which is developing the project.

Roy E Rice of Waterbury, Conn., was placed in charge of the First or Eastern region Included in this are the New England, the Atlantic and the Chesapeake bay states.

Forrest A. Burke of Springfield, Ill., directs the Second or Central region, including the Seaboard, Great Lakes and Southeastern states.

L. B Allison, director of athletics at the University of South Dakota, Vermilion, S. D, is director of the Third or Middle Western section. In this are included the corn belt, the northern and the southwestern states.

D. L. Templeton, director of athletics at Leland Stanford university at Palo Alto, Calif., directs the Fourth or Far Western region, embracing the Pacific Northwest, the Pacific and the Rocky mountain district.

The Legion boys' baseball plan contemplates the holding of contests and championships in local cities, in districts, in states and in four regions, with the junior world's series in connection with the national convention of the Legion each year. The first junior world's series was scheduled to be a feature of the Legion convention at Philadelphia from October 11 to 15, 1926.

May Have New Building to House War Records

Erection of a splendid public archives building at Washington to house World war records and other valuable government documents, will probably be a thing of the near future.

Provision for the erection of the archives building was included in a public building bill passed at the last session of congress. The archives building project has been actively supported by the American Legion ever since the Legion's third national convention at Kansas City in 1921.

In every town in America you can see skinny, scrawny men and women with deep hollows in cheeks, neck and chest who are more to be pitied than blamed

Doctors, Chemists, Scientists all agree that Cod Liver Oil is full of flesh building, health promoting, strength increasing vitamins. They also agree and the whole world agrees with them that it is about the most evil smelling and nasty tasting, nauseating stuff that human beings come in contact with—it upsets most stomachs

But now all that is changed—Cod Liver Oil comes in tablet form, sugar coated and as easy to take as candy Druggists everywhere sell McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets with the distinct understanding that if any thin, lean, underweight man or woman takes them for 30 days and does not gain at least five pounds, the purchase price will be returned

Just try them for 30 days, all you folks who need five or ten pounds of good, solid flesh They have rounded out the scrawny places in thousands of people—they will help you

Reuben [illegible] Howe, Atlantic City, N J., writes that he gained 28 pounds in eight weeks and further writes, "I sleep, feel good and eat and nothing bothers my nerves—I feel like a real man—thanks to McCoy's."

One woman, exceedingly thin, gained 10 pounds in 22 days, and don't forget that, being full of vitalizing vitamins, they do help feeble old folks who need a real tonic, and for thin, puny, underdeveloped children—they quickly bring health, strength and increased weight. 60 tablets for 60 cents. Insist on McCoy's—the original and genuine.

Tom Hearn Found Dead on Boat

Thomas Hearn, a boatman, was found dead on his boat this morning at Mott Haven, New York city. Mr. Hearn was well known in this city having resided on Newkirk avenue some years ago. During recent years he has lived with his daughter, Mrs. James McGowan, in Brooklyn, but visited friends here frequently.

About the Folks

Mrs. A. L. Clark of Middletown is spending a few days with her cousin, Mrs. Charles Lynk of Pine street.

Al Jaquin, the popular stock clerk of the Canfield Electric Supply has returned from an enjoyable vacation spent in New York and vicinity.

Mrs. I. Goldman of Goldman's style shop of 24 Broadway, has returned from New York after completing the purchasing of the fall and winter stock of fur coats, dresses and all the newest in children's wear.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

The funeral of Kathryn Henretty, who died at her home, 170 Broadway, on Wednesday, will be held from the undertaking rooms of James M. Murphy. 174 Broadway, Friday morning at 9 o'clock and at St. Mary's Church at 9:30 where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment will be in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Heads State P.-T. A.

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Mrs. Albert W. Weaver, of Buffalo today was elected president of the state parent-teacher association for the ensuing year. Binghamton was selected as the 1927 convention city.

Sesqui a Financial Failure.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7 (AP).—The sesquicentennial international exposition is a financial failure, Mayor Kendrick said today. Opening June 1 in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the declaration of independence less than 5,000,000 persons have passed through the gates, leaving the city to shoulder a big deficit.

Tearing Down St. John's Church.

Work of demolishing St. John's parish house on Wall street has been completed and workmen are now busy tearing down the church. The spire has been removed and much of the material transferred to the new site of the church on Albany avenue.

Corn Aid to Civilization

When nomadic peoples first began to grow their food and store it, instead of going out to hunt each day's rations or pick them in the convenient forests, they had to settle down near their fields and devote their spare time to some of the finer arts of life. Thus civilization advanced hand in hand with the cultivation of corn.

DIED.

HENRETTY—In this city, Wednesday, October 6, 1926, Kathryn Henretty.

In loving memory of John Maurer who departed this life October 7, 1924.

Dearest father, thou hast left us,
And our loss we deeply feel,
But it's God that has bereft us,
He can all our sorrow heal.
Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled,
When in Heaven in joy to greet thee
Where no farewell tear is shed.

Chevrolet Car Goes on Rampage

A Chevrolet car which started a stampede in the vicinity of Wall and St. James streets this morning caused considerable excitement before it was halted by James Cunningham who leaped to the running-board and stopped it.

The car was parked on St. James street and had evidently been left in reverse while the owner went to do some shopping. When she returned she forgot about it being in gear and as the starter was stepped upon the automobile at once started to back down the street in a zig zag manner. The lady who was driving the car became confused and forgot to stop the rampaging auto.

While the car was following its unsteady course it struck a Hudson automobile that was parked at the curb and the woman was thrown from the Chevrolet and struck the pavement. She was not injured and when the car was turned over to her by the man who stopped it, she took her position at the wheel and drove away.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Further weakness developed in today's stock market. Encouraged by a continuance of easy money rates, and favorable trade news, operators for the rise endeavored to rally the list at the opening and succeeded in marking up a number of issues one to seven points. The rally again failed to hold, however, and was followed by energetic bear selling of the motors and public utilities which eventually undermined the general list and sent prices crashing two to ten points below their earlier high levels.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Simon, 21 Ann street, a son, Harry, at Kingston City Hospital.

Genius Gets Recognition

There is little unrecognized genius going a-begging; at least, if it has character behind it. Keats and Shelley are often quoted to the contrary. They both died before they turned thirty. Had they lived as long as Tennyson and Wordsworth they would have enjoyed forty or fifty years of fame. As it is, it is untrue to say they died "unwept, unhonor'd and unsung."—London Tit-Bits.

Wadsworth Given Warm Welcome In Dry Districts

Democrats Declare They Will Vote For Wadsworth—Reference To Necessity of Substituting Temperance For Compulsory Total Abstinence Meets Approval.

Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP).—To the complicated situation which has arisen in northwestern New York state over prohibition were added today reports of Republican leaders to Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., that there is a distinct trend in public sentiment here toward "the Smith Wadsworth" combination.

This report from the leaders, all influential in this locality, is based on the attendance at Senator Wadsworth's meeting here last night of a large number of Democrats who said they intend to vote for Wadsworth, at the same time maintaining their allegience to the Democratic cause by voting for Governor Smith. The Republican chieftains, however, assured the Senator that there was no danger of this territory losing its reputation for Republicanism at the coming election by failing to give all regular Republican candidates a plurality.

Watertown Audience Demonstrative.

Watertown, the first city in this state to adopt a municipal prohibition enforcement code similar to the upstate Mullan-Gage act repealed in 1923, gave Senator Wadsworth an enthusiastic welcome when he besought its support last night in his campaign for re-election. The theatre in which he spoke was well filled, and the audience greeted demonstratively his reference to the necessity of substituting temperance for the present compulsory total abstinence.

The senator's listeners were particularly interested in his declaration that "bootleggers could not exist an hour if it were not for the public demand for their wares." According to law enforcement officers, all Republicans of this territory, public attention is focussed on this matter because of the city's proximity to the Canadian border. Bootlegging is by no means as prevalent now as in past years, they declared, and what traffic still exists passes through rather than stops at Watertown.

Continues In Dry District.

Senator Wadsworth's speaking schedule today took him farther through an admittedly dry district, the full length of St. Lawrence county. His first stop was at Carthage, in Jefferson county, whence he was to continue on to Gouverneur, in St. Lawrence county. After speaking in Canton, the seat of St. Lawrence University, Mr. Wadsworth will continue on to Ogdensburg for his night meeting and over night stay. Tomorrow he will cross the northern end of the state, spending the night in Plattsburg.

12 Bodies Taken From Iron Mine

Rockwood, Tenn., Oct. 7 (AP).—Removal of three more bodies during the night brought to twelve the number of dead in the explosion in the Rodgers entry of the Roane Iron Company mine here Monday.

Rescue workers pressed on toward the scene of the explosion, where it is believed fifteen more victims remain.

Roosevelt Will Have Operation

Chicago, Oct. 7 (AP).—A carbuncle on the neck of Theodore Roosevelt has become so serious as to necessitate an operation and he will leave for New York today, after speaking at Elkhart, Ind., to enter a hospital, the Republican congressional campaign committee was notified today.

ISAAC WILLIAMS UNDER ARREST ON THEFT CHARGE.

Isaac Williams, a negro, was placed under arrest today by the police on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. He is charged with stealing a gold watch and chain from the pocket of Edward Smith. Both reside on Miller's Lane and are employed on the job of altering the old Kingston Opera House building. The case will come up for a hearing in police court Friday.

MEDICAL EXAMINATIONS FOR GIRLS AT Y. W. C. A.

Dr. Mary Gage-Day will be at the Y. W. C. A. to give medical examinations for swimming Friday evening at 7 o'clock. This evening is reserved for the older girls who are to make appointments for their examination, either by 'phoning or stopping at the "Y. W."

Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock Dr. Day will examine the grade and high school girls at the Y. W. C. A. Girls are asked to telephone for an appointment.

"Handicap of Wealth" Is Beaten by Ogden Mills

Candidate Tells About Life and Ambitions.

By CHARLES S. HAND.

If you had millions, a city and a country home, motor cars and unlimited opportunity for world travel and indolence, would you study law, practise before the courts, become an election district captain and ultimately work yourself into the State Senate and Congress?

No?

Well, that is what Ogden L. Mills, Republican candidate for Governor, has done. Energetic and diligent, he overcame the handicap of wealth. He learned politics from the ground up. And when he had sufficiently perfected what is recognized as about the best brain in his party in this section, the nomination for Governor was thrust upon him.

Because Mills is not nearly so well known to the people of the State as his rival, Governor Smith, it is a matter of news to give an idea of the man and some facts of his career.

INHERITED VIGOR.

Mill's friends say his vigor, courage and independence came down to him from his progenitors. They recount the story of his grandfather, Darius O. Mills, clerk in a Buffalo bank, when there was the rush to the California gold fields in 1849.

Grandfather Mills, who came from a family of Long Island and Westchester farmers, came to New York and dug up sufficient capital to fit out two merchant vessels with groceries and other necessaries of life. Then he sailed them around the horn to San Francisco. A shrewd trader in California he laid the foundation upon which the family's fortune was built.

When Ogden, the grandson, was born the Mills family home was at No. 2 East Sixty-ninth street, corner of Fifth avenue. The Mills name was recorded among New York's 400 and, it so happened, Ogden came into the world at Newport instead of at Sixty-ninth street, where he has lived ever since.

REAL NEW YORKER.

About this Mills vouchsafed this comment:

> "Al Smith can lay no more justifiable claim to being a New Yorker than I can. Certainly nobody can take that distinction away from me, not even my opponent, despite the fact that he has lived on Oliver street, in the heart of the East Side, and I on upper Fifth avenue.
>
> "My father and my grandfather before him lived in New York and were of New York. Here I am living in the home that my grandmother occupied for so many years. And next door to me is my father, a resident of the city since his birth."

From the brownstone steps of his Sixty-ninth street home, where Mills posed for movie cameras, the candidate started for school each day when a boy in his early teens. At seventeen he was in Harvard, from which he was graduated two years later—a thing almost unprecedented in those days.

LAW SERIOUS WORK.

Three years of association with Blackstone followed at the Harvard Law School and young Mills was back in New York. Let him tell what followed:

> "I became a clerk in the office of Stetson, Jennings & Russell, the law firm with which President Cleveland had been associated. Ultimately, I became one of the partners.
>
> "I practiced law very seriously. There was a reason. I was possessed of a fortune, but I wanted to put myself, as a matter of personal pride, in a position where I was not dependent upon the income which I had inherited. In other words, I was determined to become self-supporting, and I became just that."

"And then you went into politics?"

Mills reflected a moment, before answering:

> "I did. I did so partly because I had a bent in that direction, but more so for this reason: I concluded that a man with money should justify his existence—jump into the civic boat and take a turn at the oars.

BEGAN AT THE FOOT.

> "First I became a worker at the polls, right here in the district where I am still living. I became the captain of my district. I went about and chavassed the voters—pulled doorbells all day long and far into the night.
>
> "I thought that more useful—I mean political activity in behalf of good government—than the task of devoting myself to the accumulation of more wealth.
>
> "I started my political life in the very block where I have lived all my life and there I shall continue it."

One defeat for Congress and Mills became a member of the State Senate, growing steadily in political stature and influence at Albany in 1915, 1916 and 1917. Along came the World War and American participation in it. Mills resigned from the Senate. He wanted to fight. How well he succeeded it told in his own words:

> "I applied for entrance to the Plattsburgh camp. The doctors turned me down, saying my eyes weren't good enough. I appealed to Colonel Harry Stimson at Washington, telling him he would have to get me in.

TRAINED AT CAMP.

> "Stimson, through the President, got me a commission as a captain. I went to work in the War College. Then I asked for permission, in spite of my eyes, to train at the Fort Myer Camp. It was granted.
>
> "I went through the course and was given a certificate, saying my showing had been satisfactory enough to entitle me to become a captain of infantry, except for the drawback of my impaired sight."

Subsequently Mills was sent to Europe. First he was assigned to headquarters, thereafter to the First Division when it first went into line. A course at the staff school followed. Then he was assigned to the Second Division with the Marines in their noteworthy battles.

When the war ended he was in the Argonne with the Sixth Division.

Mill's adult years have not been given over entirely to the law, and politics. He plays between times. He was asked:

"Surely you go in for recreation. What form does it take?"

SHOOTS AND SAILS.

The candidate answered:

> "I like a little of everything. I play golf and tennis. I like to shoot when I have the chance. I like to go out in a small boat and sail.
>
> "I don't play any games nearly as well as many other folks, but well enough to extract a lot of fun out of them.
>
> And I like horse-racing. I get down to Belmont Park, Aqueduct and Jamaica as often as I can. Nothing appeals to me more than a good horse—and a good horse-race."

TOBACCO ONLY CLOUD—The Republican candidate enjoys a cigar as he describes his life and his work.

Mills is not lacking in hobbies. Politics and the keen enjoyment in the playing of it stand first with him. Books rank second. He has extensive libraries at his Long Island estate and his city home. He does not go in for rare editions or fine binding. He said:

> "Just books—that's all—books out of which one can get enjoyment."

EXPERT ON TAXATION.

Mills, who in Congress is recognized as one of the country's foremost experts on taxation, stressed that if he is elected Governor he hopes to "do a man's job" at Albany. He considers the post offers a splendid opportunity for real public service.

With his eyes on the State capital, here is what runs through the Republican candidate's mind:

> "I have qualified myself for the office, I think, not only from the standpoint of close study of State governmental affairs, but through practical endeavors in the field of politics. I have worked up from the bottom of the ladder.
>
> "I hope I won't be arraigned for vanity if I say, with all humility that I could have devoted my walking hours to the accumulation of more money or just loafed my life away.

MUST OBEY PEOPLE.

> "I have decided notions about the Governorship. The head of the State must be a good executive in the management of the State's affairs. His second duty is to carry out faithfully the will of the people and he must have a thorough familiarity and sympathy with the thoughts, purposes and aspirations of the people.
>
> "That can come to him only by mingling with them as I have and working up from a humble position in the party ranks."

As to his aims, in the event of election, Mills outlined them thus:

> "I found when I went to the Legislature that virtually every one up the State was against New York City. But I found it possible to work in complete harmony with the up-State group.
>
> "I believe it is possible for a Governor who is possessed of the right spirit to end the antagonism between the rural communities and New York City. I feel, too, that it is possible to unite the Republicans in both ends of the commonwealth and weld them into a harmonious entity.

INTERESTS IN COMMON.

> "No New Yorker, be he governor or plain citizen, should make political capital for himself by accentuating the existing differences between the metropolis and the up-State region.
>
> "If I am elected Governor I shall not divide a population whose interests are in common. That goes also for the Legislature and my treatment of it. I won't try to be a great Governor at the expense of the State's legislative body."

Mills is forty-two, eleven years younger than Governor Smith. He is not hard on the eye. He is just about the right height and weight. He is five feet ten inches and tips the scales at 165 pounds. He is blond, red-cheeked, clean-shaven and wears tortoise glasses.

And when he speaks of his opponent, Governor Smith, for whom he has a high personal regard, Mills expresses the hope that the voters will suspend judgement on the result until election day, adding:

> "This is a bad year for champions."

Deaths from Auto Mishaps 16 a Day

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP).—Deaths from automobile accidents in 78 of the principal cities of the United States totaled 4,162 during the first 36 weeks of 1926. This is an average, the commerce department reported today, of more than 16 deaths a day and is equivalent to an annual death rate of 13.9 for every 100,000 persons.

Nicholson Held for Hearing.

Emanuel Nicholson was arrested Wednesday night by State Trooper Bentley in the town of Ulster for public intoxication. He was brought to the Ulster county jail to await a hearing before Judge Jennings at Lake Katrine.

Weiner Hose Auxiliary Officers.

At the regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Weiner Hose Co., No. 6, held October 5, the following officers were elected: Mrs. J. Bruck, president; Mrs. M. Miller, vice president; Miss Mildred Kolts, secretary; Miss Margaret Messinger, treasurer.

Card Party Tonight.

A card party will be held tonight at the Masonic Club rooms, Broadway, for the benefit of the Masonic-Eastern Star fair, under the auspices of the candy booth. Playing will start promptly at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

NATIVE CLIMATE FOR MONKEY HOME

New Equipment at Institute to Aid in Study of Simians.

Paris.—A palatial concrete and glass establishment for monkeys that supplies every simian comfort possible in a chilly northern clime is a recent addition to the equipment of the Pasteur institute.

Experimental work on the types of animals most nearly approaching man is a first requirement of nearly every piece of research that helps to find some new means of cutting down the toll of disease. Unfortunately monkeys transported from the tropics to an alien environment pick up so many intercurrent infections that precise and accurate medical work with them is exceedingly difficult.

Building Designed for Monkeys.

The new building in the grounds of the Pasteur institute was built under the direction of Dr. Albert Calmette, whose tuberculosis vaccine has attracted wide attention in medical circles and is especially designed to overcome monkey susceptibilities to disease. Funds for its construction were donated by the Princess Marie of Greece in honor of her father, Prince Roland Bonaparte, himself a friend and patron of scientific endeavor.

Doctor Chalmette has made a close study of the animals' needs and believes in the midst of northern civilization their living condition should approximate as closely as possible their natural habitat. Peanuts and bananas are not the only things monkeys should eat, circuses and zoos notwithstanding, according to Doctor Chalmette.

Have Cook and Valet.

Two big blacks from central Africa, where the Pasteur monkeys were collected, act as cook and valet de chambre. One burly African in the model kitchen at one end of the glass-inclosed building prepares menus as well balanced as any self-respecting chimpanzee would steal for himself in the depths of the Congo.

Each one has a roomy chamber inclosed completely with glass or screen, as the weather requires, except for a small window in front. Radiators located midway up the wall keep the atmosphere at jungle temperature, while an elaborate ventilating system, running water and a system of perches and swings that would do credit to any playground help to make urban home life an attractive substitute for a precarious struggle for existence in central African wilds.

HOW

USE OF SLANG HAS BUILT UP ENGLISH LANGUAGE.—Most people regard a word as just a word. Yet, as a matter of fact, words, like people, have histories. Some, rooted in humble origins, rise and become noble.

In the late Eighteenth century some one invented the slang word "gamble." It has since gone up in the world; today it is good English. Other words which were once mere slang are: "foggy," "nag," "stingy," "fun," "clever."

Look up Doctor Johnson's famous dictionary and you see that he stigmatizes "clever" as a "low word," and "fun" and "stingy" as "low cant words." Today they are very respectable members of the English language.

On the other hand, many really beautiful words are dying.

Among these are: "blithe," "fain," "sooth," "dight."

Even the poets are passing them by. Charming as they are, they are humble word-folk today.

Aside from old words which have entered the dictionary by the back door of slang and cant, and others of the aristocracy of our language which have lost caste, there are newborn words.

A new word is born whenever we make any scientific advance. Sometimes, however, such words are shortlived. Thus, today, "aviator," a mere infant, born of the conquest of the air, is wilting before its lusty younger brother, "airman." Similarly, "airplane" has replaced "flying machine." "Chauffeur" is an example of a word imported through sheer laziness.

To "listen in" is a late newcomer, born of wireless. "Jazz" is another word rapidly making its way in the world. "Stunt," still a parvenu of the slang class, is forging ahead. Very soon it will be quite good English, with a place in the peerage of words, the dictionary.—London Answers.

How to Remove Stain Produced by Mildew

Mildew is one of the most stubborn stains with which the housewife has to deal. If it will not yield to exposure to sunshine, javelle water is the next treatment to use. As a last resort a solution of potassium permanganate should be tried, followed by an application of oxalic acid solution to remove the permanganate stain. For the potassium permanganate solution, dissolve half a teaspoonful of the crystals in a pint of water. For the oxalic acid solution, use one teaspoonful of crystals to a pint of water. Before using the permanganate dampen the spot with clear water, apply with a scent dropper and rinse by pouring water through. Apply oxalic solution in the same way and rinse. Repeat as often as necessary. After the final application wash the cloth very carefully to remove every trace of the chemicals.

How to Hang Curtains

Where two sets of curtains are hung at each window, one on the upper and one on the lower sash, the under curtain rod is fastened directly on the lower window sash so that when the latter is raised the curtain goes up with it. This requires the "outside" type of fixture. The top curtain rod is preferably fastened by "socket" fixtures on the inside of the window casing, but may be also put upon the upper sash with bracket fixtures. Both curtains are headed in the same manner and the hem of the upper curtain is made to hang just over the heading of the lower curtain.

How Matches Are Made

The composition of the head of an ordinary match consists of phosphorus and niter, or phosphorus, sulphur and chlorate of potash, mixed with melted gum or glue, and colored with vermilion, umber, soot or other coloring material. The safety match differs from the ordinary match in having the phosphorus omitted from the composition applied to the match stick and combined instead with sand to form a friction surface on the match box, where the matches, which usually have chlorate of potash in their heads, are rubbed in order to be lighted.

How to Preserve Eggs

A new and quick method of preserving eggs has been developed by chemists of a Schenectady (N. Y.) laboratory, according to the Science and Invention Monthly. The eggs are dipped in an oil bath maintained at a temperature of 225 degrees Fahrenheit. This fills the pores of the shells, thereby preventing air from entering through them.

A whole crate of eggs at a time is lowered into the oil tank, which is electrically heated, left there a few minutes, and then withdrawn. A machine has been constructed that has a capacity of 300,000 eggs per hour.

Town Names in America

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

HICKSVILLE, a suburb of New York on Long Island, was recently the scene of a bitter battle. Words and ballots were the weapons. The antagonists were a group of citizens who wanted to change the name of Hicksville.

Hicksville, they complained, sounded too farmerish for a suburb of New York. The defenders stood loyally by the name of Hicksville and the honorable memory of Hicks for whom the town was named. They won at the ballot box by a big margin.

Town names resist the melting pot. Of the 52,000 towns of the United States large enough to have post offices, relatively few like Uniontown, Penn., Flagstaff and Old Glory, Arizona, and Tincup, Colo., have clear American titles. Some which seem to have American flavor like Yankton, S. D., and Rockaway, N. Y., are really rough adaptations from the Indian. The Sioux called the place Ihanktonwan meaning "end village." Rockaway was once Reckawackes.

All of Europe's peoples have helped populate the United States. By the second generation, at least, most of the colonizers or immigrants have become Americans. Italian railroad laborers have taken the surnames of their Irish foremen. Germans and Scandinavians have Anglicized their names. But the record of invasion by the nations of Europe is forever engraved on America with town names.

Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, serves as a good example. This county is the rallying center of Pennsylvania Dutch, but look at the variety of races that have settled it as revealed by the town names. Lancaster is English, of course. So are Cambridge and Little Britain. The bulk of names are probably Dutch, notably Florin, New Holland, and Bowmansville (Baughman originally). But Dutch must be made to include German for there can be found Manheim, from the city on the Rhine; Lititz, from a barony now in Czechoslovakia, and Strasburg, an American echo of the Alsatian city. In Lancaster county there is much more of Great Britain than is English. The Welsh are represented with Penryn, the Scotch with Gordonville and Bartville. McSparren may be Scotch but it sounds Irish. Lapark is probably French. Pequea is a Shawnee word for "ashes." America and America only could contribute Union Grove.

Harpur's Classical Names.

An outside observer unacquainted with American history might suspect that the North American continent had been overrun in turn by Egyptians, the Phoenicians, the Chinese, the Legions of Julius Caesar, the Armenians, the Portuguese and the Greeks. There are 7 American Cairos, 1 Thebes, and 13 Alexandrias, 18 Carthages, 22 Cantons, 6 Pekins, 1 Koran, 06 Athenses, and 10 Corinths, 14 Romes, 6 Syracuses, 4 Ithacas, 6 Philadelphias and 27 Troys to prove that not in vain did Homer smite his "bloomin' lute."

America's heritage of ancient history is due partly to the classical point of view in colonial day education and partly to Robert Harpur. His name will not be found in the history books. He was merely a clerk in the land commissioners' office in New York city. One day he did a little piece of work which has marked the United States more indelibly than lifetime accomplishments of leaders in his generation. Harpur was told, it is said, to give names to a lot of divisions on the map which had previously been numbered. His imaginative powers were not of the best, it seems, so he placed a dictionary of classical names on his desk, selecting titles as the need arose. Thus Harpur, clerk, stood godfather to Syracuse, Utica, Troy, Ithaca, Rome, Ilion, Palmyra and other towns of the now state of New York.

One of Robert Harpur's names, Troy, has distinguished itself by fulfilling the natural tendency of European names landing on the eastern seaboard. Nearly all of them went west and grew up with the country. But Troy is one of the few borrowed place names which can be traced in every state of a continuous band stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. While Troy is a town name in still other states, the following are commonwealths which were branded with the torch of Troy as it was carried directly across the nation by pioneers: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Oregon.

Many of the names which the colonists themselves brought from their home cities in England stride across the country as if each state were a stepping-stone for the next. Plymouth and Dover miss but one state each in their coast-to-coast tramp. Milford, London, Richmond, Clinton, Camden, Chester, Manchester and Kingston show the footprint of the pioneer marching west.

Spanish Names.

The ebb and the flow of American invasion by European peoples are shown by town names almost as clearly as a tide marks its deepest reach on the shore. In southern California the mellifluous Spanish names are everywhere met with. As a traveler goes north they become fewer and fewer. Above San Francisco, Spanish names are more likely to be found labelling mountains, counties and the like. Probably the last outpost is Cape Blanco, Oregon. Spanish names do not penetrate Nevada and neither did the Spaniard. But along the trail of Coronado the Spaniard traveled. There is a big wedge of Spanish names forced into Colorado, which is itself Spanish.

Americans have a bad time with foreign names, particularly Spanish names such as Colorado offers. A branch of Arkansas river in the state is known as the Purgatoire, in accordance with the early Spanish nomenclature. When the English pioneers arrived they mistook the title for Picketwire and Picketwire river it still remains for many residents of southern Colorado.

The Iroquois Indians affected American nomenclature in a curious way. Not only did they leave their tribe names on the map—Mohawk, Onondaga, Oneida, Seneca, and Cayuga—but they kept French names erased from the border from Maine to Michigan. History tells that the French were forced by the warring Iroquois to go by the Ottawa river to the upper Great Lakes to get into the Mississippi valley. Place names bear out the French predicament. After Detroit French names are common; Presque Isle, Charlevoix, Sault Sainte Marie in Michigan; Prairie du Chien, La Crosse, Eau Claire, in Wisconsin; Duluth, Lac qui Parle, Roseau, Cloquet, and Faribault, in Minnesota. French names taper off toward the west as did French penetration. There are Bottineau, North Dakota, and Pierre, South Dakota, and finally Laramie, Wyoming, for the French fur trader Jacques Laramie.

George Washington mistook the name Illinois for French when he first heard it. The name of the Indian tribe sounded to him like "Ile Noir" so he supposed that the French called the country "Black Island." The fertile black soil of Illinois' corn belt, however, serves to justify Washington's error.

French in Louisiana.

The long control of Louisiana by France has left the state with a large heritage of French names: New Orleans, Lake Pontchartrain, Lafourche, Baton Rouge, Vacherie and Allemands. Allemand is the French word for Germans but we need not suppose that it served to label a colony of Germans down in Louisiana because it also means "stranger." New Orleans is said to have the only Main street in the United States which does not have a common adjective for an ancestor. Main street, New Orleans, is of royal blood. It was named in honor of the duke of the French province Maine but in the rough and tumble of time lost its distinguishing "e." The state of that name may take its title from the same source, but the facts in the case are obscure.

Not all of the Spanish names in Florida first saw the light of day in offices of American realtors. Some are genuine. One of the guaranteed A-No. 1 antique Spanish names sounds most American. Key West is the tip of Florida. What, one wonders, can it be west of? The Spanish called it Cayo Hueso meaning "bone reef." The English mispronounced it into Key West.

One of the most impressive name records of colonization in America is to be found in the Shenandoah valley of Virginia. The English were first to cross the Blue Ridge into this fertile 400-mile upland valley. They selected the most important sites which have become chief towns—Winchester, New Market, Harrisonburg and Staunton. But the Shenandoah was largely settled by Scotch-Irish and Pennsylvania Dutch migrating from Pennsylvania. The Dutch were strictly farmers so the next largest towns bear Scotch or Irish names—Buchanan, Edinburg, Ivanhoe and Marmion, and Maggie, McGaheysville, Irish Creek and Burketown. Generally the smaller places take the Dutch or German names like Fulks Run, Bowmans, Amsterdam, Detrick, Sweope, Lantz Mills and Hepners.

In Kinderhook, Greene county, Virginia, there is bond with the Dutch patroons who lost the colony of New York to the English but never surrendered Brooklyn, Sandy Hook, Spuyten Duyvil, Bronx, Yonkers, Hoboken, Peekskill, Hell Gate and Kinderhook itself.

In Swedesboro, N. J., there is the only name record of the early attempt of Swedish colonization in America. Scandinavians have been much more successful in later years out in Minnesota and the Dakotas. Names give evidence: Viking, Upsala, Dora, [illegible], Svea, Wegdahl and [illegible] in Minnesota; Langdahl, Oscar, Arndt, [illegible], Alsen, Bergen, [illegible], [illegible], Larson and [illegible] in North Dakota.

Oldest Forest

An inter-glacial forest—one which grew between two glacial eras and was covered over by the second glacier, thus being preserved for centuries—has been discovered on the north side of Mendenhall glacier near Juneau, Alaska.

Early Royal Signature

Who was the first British king to sign his name as distinguished from the mere marks formerly used?—The earliest record is in a letter signed by King Richard II, granting to a priest near Bristol a tun of red wine every Christmas.

Biblical Dates

The approximate dates of the happenings recorded in the Bible were fixed after long and careful study by historians and scientists. The letters B. C. mean before the Christian era; and the letters A. D. signify Anno Domini, meaning the beginning of the Christian era. There are plenty of evidences that these dates are approximately correct.

Beliefs of Great Men

The exact religious views of Li coln and Jefferson have long been d puted. Neither of them were chur members in the technical sense. Je ferson was of Episcopalian ancestr When he was in Philadelphia he oft attended the Unitarian church. though Lincoln was not a chur member he attended a Presbyteri church regularly when President.—Pathfinder Magazine.
